Martin,Jane Pollard,2017-03-31 The aim of this timely work which appears in the wake of the worst global financial crisis since the late 1920s is to bring together high quality research based contributions from leading international scholars involved in constructing a geographical perspective on money Topics covered include the crisis the spatial circuits of finance regulation mainstream financial markets banking equity etc through to the various alternative and disruptive forms of money that have arisen in recent years It will be of interest to geographers political scientists sociologists economists planners and all those interested in how money shapes and reshapes socio economic space and conditions local and regional development

Future North Janike Kampevold Larsen,Peter Hemmersam,2018-04-09 The changing Arctic is of broad political concern and is being studied across many fields This book investigates ongoing changes in the Arctic from a landscape perspective It examines settlements and territories of the Barents Sea Coast Northern Norway the Russian Kola Peninsula Svalbard and Greenland from an interdisciplinary design based and future oriented perspective The Future North project has travelled Arctic regions since 2012 mapped landscapes and settlements documented stories and practices and discussed possible futures with local actors Reflecting the multidisciplinary nature of the project the authors in this book look at political and economic strategies urban development land use strategies and local initiatives in specific locations that are subject to different forces of change This book explores current material conditions in the Arctic as effects of industrial and political agency and social initiatives It provides a combined view on the built environment and urbanism as well as the cultural and material landscapes of the Arctic The chapters move beyond single disciplinary perspectives on the Arctic and engage with futures cultural landscapes and communities in ways that build on both architectural and ethnographic participatory methods Organic Food and Farming in China Steffanie Scott,Zhenzhong Si,Theresa Schumilas,Aijuan Chen,2018-10-03

Despite reports of food safety and quality scandals China has a rapidly expanding organic agriculture and food sector and there is a revolution in ecological food and ethical eating in China s cities This book shows how a set of social economic cultural and environmental conditions have converged to shape the development of a formal organic sector created by top down state developed standards and regulations and an informal organic sector created by bottom up grassroots struggles for safe healthy and sustainable food This is generating a new civil movement focused on ecological agriculture and quality food Organic movements and markets have typically emerged in industrialized food systems that are characterized by private land ownership declining small farm sectors consolidated farm to retail chains predominance of supermarket retail standards and laws to safeguard food safety and an active civil society sector The authors contrast this with the Chinese context with its unique version of capitalism with social characteristics collective farmland ownership and predominance of smallholder agriculture and emerging diverse marketing channels China's experience also reflects a commitment to domestic food security evolving food safety legislation and a civil society with limited autonomy from a semi authoritarian state that keeps shifting the terrain of what is permitted The book will be of great interest to advanced students and researchers of agricultural and food systems and policy as well as rural sociology and Chinese studies Growing Community Forests

Ryan Bullock, Gayle Broad, Lynn Palmer, M.A. (Peggy) Smith, 2017-10-13 Canada is experiencing an unparalleled crisis involving forests and communities across the country While municipalities policy makers and industry leaders acknowledge common challenges such as an overdependence on US markets rising energy costs and lack of diversification no common set of solutions has been developed and implemented Ongoing and at times contentious public debate has revealed an appetite and need for a fundamental rethinking of the relationships that link our communities governments industrial partners and forests towards a more sustainable future The creation of community forests is one path that promises to build resilience in forest communities and ecosystems This model provides local control over common forest lands in order to activate resource development opportunities benefits and social responsibilities Implementing community forestry in practice has proven to be a complex task however there are no road maps or well developed and widely tested models for community forestry in Canada But in settings where community forests have taken hold there is a rich and growing body of experience to draw on The contributors to Growing Community Forests include leading researchers practitioners Indigenous representatives government representatives local advocates and students who are actively engaged in sharing experiences resources and tools of significance to forest resource communities policy makers and industry Responding to Climate Change in Asian Cities Diane Archer, Sarah Colenbrander, David Dodman, 2016-11-03 The role of cities in addressing climate change is increasingly recognised in international arenas including the Sustainable Development Goals the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change and the New Urban Agenda Asia is home to many of the countries that are most vulnerable to climate change impacts and along with Africa will be the site of most urban population growth over the coming decades Bringing together a range of city experiences Responding to Climate Change in Asian Cities provides valuable insights into how cities can overcome some of the barriers to building climate resilience including addressing the needs of vulnerable populations The chapters are centred on an overarching understanding that adaptive urban governance is necessary for climate resilience This requires engaging with different actors to take into account their experiences vulnerabilities and priorities building knowledge including collecting and using appropriate evidence and understanding the institutions shaping interactions between actors from the national to the local level The chapters draw on a mix of research methodologies demonstrating the variety of approaches to understanding and building urban resilience that can be applied in urban settings Bringing together a range of expert contributors this book will be of great interest to scholars of urban studies sustainability
