Basse,1901 Italie abbé Joseph Louis Théodore Moyne, 1858 The Two Worlds of the Poet Robert M. Wilhelm, Howard Jones, 1992 This collection of essays honors Alexander Gordon McKay one of the most respected names in Vergilian studies Written by some of the world's leading scholars the essays offer new perspectives on the larger Vergilian world which Dr McKay's scholarship has so richly illuminated The Two Worlds of the Poet focuses primarily on Vergil and Augustan literature and art with several essays that expand the Vergilian theme and reflect the wide research interests of Professor McKay in such areas of classical studies as literature art architecture painting and sculpture Vergil's world presents two faces each inseparable from the other the world which formed the poet and the world which the poet himself created and it is proper that a volume which commemorates a scholar whose own work has elucidated both of these worlds should address itself to each Several essays examine the poet s modus creandi his use of the simile his assimilation of the language and motifs of Roman comic drama his exploitation of the rich store of Greek Etruscan and Roman mythological legendary and historical material and his treatment of a variety of themes which touch upon the very essence of the human condition Other essays touch upon various aspects of Vergil's material and cultural environment enabling readers to place his created work in a broader perspective Contributors offer new perspectives on the post classical treatment of Vergilian themes illustrating how the reception of Vergil varied with successive generations The volume concludes with the reflections of the senior statesman of Vergilian criticism upon the scholar's art and mission Vergil knew that to understand the present it was essential to break out of the narrow circle of the moment and to reach into the past thereby affirming our own humanity and our place in the world and finding paths into the future Vergil and his poetry create evocative connections that cut across time and place and culture providing a glimpse at the universal human experience The essays in The Two Worlds of the Poet explore Vergil's own struggle to find his place in the world chronicle the pathway by which we gain entry into the world of the poet and examine how the world of the poet has influenced and enriched our world Robert McKay Wilhelm is a professor of Classics at Miami University in Oxford Ohio His specialties include Latin literature Vergilian studies classical mythology and Greek and Roman art and archaeology He earned his Ph D from The Ohio State University A professor of Classics at McMaster University Howard Jones is the author of several books including Pierre Gassendi An Intellectual Biography and The Epicurean Tradition He received his Ph D from Indiana University Les littératures nationales depuis leur apparition et la littérature latine depuis la mort de Charles le Chauve jusqu'au commencement du onzième siècle Adolf Ebert, 1889 Cours de Littérature Ancienne et Moderne abbé Pierre Nérée Dassance.1844 The Catholic Encyclopedia Charles George Herbermann, 1913 La *legislation universelle, naturelle, civile et politique ,1778 Biographie des jeunes gens Beauchamp, 1813 Le quinzième centenaire de S.
