Landscape and Images John R. Stilgoe, 2005 The proof says Stilgoe is all around us What Is Landscape? John R. Stilgoe, 2015-10-09 A lexicon and guide for discovering the essence of landscape Reading Rural Landscapes: A Field Guide to New England's Past Robert Stanford, 2015-07-30 William Faulkner once said The past is never dead It s not even past Nowhere can you see the truth behind his comment more plainly than in rural New England especially Maine New Hampshire Vermont and western Massachusetts Everywhere we go in rural New England the past surrounds us In the woods and fields and along country roads the traces are everywhere if we know what to look for and how to interpret what we see A patch of neglected daylilies marks a long abandoned homestead A grown over cellar hole with nearby stumps and remnants of stone wall and orchard shows us where a farm has been reclaimed by forest And a piece of a stone dam and wooden sluice mark the site of a long gone mill Although slumping back into the landscape these features speak to us if we can hear them and they can guide us to ancestral homesteads and famous sites Lavishly illustrated with drawings and color photos Provides the keys to interpret human artifacts in fields woods and roadsides and to reconstruct the past from surviving clues Perfect to carry in a backpack or glove box A unique and valuable resource for road trips genealogical research naturalists and historians

Making Bourbon Karl Raitz, 2020-03-17 Raitz examines the rich story of distilling in its Kentucky heartland and traces its maturation from a local craft to an enduring industry William Wyckoff author of How to Read the American West While other industries chase after the new and improved bourbon makers celebrate traditions that harken back to an authentic frontier craft Distillers enshrine local history in their branding and time tested recipes and rightfully so Kentucky s unique geography shaped the whiskeys its settlers produced and for more than two centuries distilling bourbon fundamentally altered every aspect of Kentucky s landscape and culture Making Bourbon A Geographical History of Distilling in Nineteenth Century Kentucky illuminates how the specific geography culture and ecology of the Bluegrass converged and gave birth to Kentucky s favorite barrel aged whiskey Expanding on his fall 2019 release Bourbon s Backroads Karl Raitz delivers a more nuanced discussion of bourbon s evolution by contrasting the fates of two distilleries in Scott and Nelson Counties In the nineteenth century distilling changed from an artisanal craft practiced by farmers and millers to a large scale mechanized industry The resulting infrastructure farms mills turnpikes railroads steamboats lumberyards and cooperage shops left its permanent mark on the land and traditions of the commonwealth Today multinational brands emphasize and even construct this local heritage This unique interdisciplinary study uncovers the complex history poured into every glass of bourbon A gem The depth of Raitz s research and the breadth of his analysis have produced a masterful telling of the shift from craft to industrial distilling And in telling us the story of bourbon Raitz also makes a terrific contribution to our understanding of America s nineteenth century economy David E Hamilton author of From New Day to New Deal

Landscapes of Power Sharon Zukin, 1993-03-12 The momentous changes which are transforming American life call for a new exploration of the economic and cultural landscape In this book Sharon Zukin links our ever expanding need to consume with two fundamental shifts places of production have given way to spaces for services and paperwork and the competitive edge has moved from industrial to cultural capital From the steel mills of the Rust Belt to the sterile malls of suburbia to the gentrified urban centers of our largest cities the creative destruction of our economy a process by which a way of life is both lost and gained results in a dramatically different landscape of economic power Sharon Zukin probes the depth and diversity of this restructuring in a series of portraits of changed or changing American places Beginning at River Rouge Henry Ford s industrial complex in Dearborn Michigan and ending at Disney World Zukin demonstrates how powerful interests shape the spaces we inhabit Among the landscapes she examines are steeltowns in West Virginia and Michigan affluent corporate suburbs in Westchester County gentrified areas of lower Manhattan and theme parks in Florida and California In each of these case studies new strategies of investment and employment are filtered through existing institutions experience in both production and consumption and represented in material products aesthetic forms and new perceptions of space and time The current transformation differs from those of the past in that individuals and institutions now have far greater power to alter the course of change making the creative destruction of landscape the most important cultural product of our time Zukin s eclectic inquiry into the parameters of social action and the emergence of new cultural forms defines the interdisciplinary frontier where sociology geography economics and urban and cultural studies meet

Black Landscapes Matter Walter Hood, Grace Mitchell Tada, 2020-12-09 The question Do black landscapes matter cuts deep to the core of American history From the plantations of slavery to contemporary segregated cities from freedman villages to northern migrations for freedom the nation s landscape bears the detritus of diverse origins Black landscapes matter because they tell the truth In this vital new collection acclaimed landscape designer and public artist Walter Hood assembles a group of notable landscape architecture and planning professionals and scholars to probe how race memory and meaning intersect in the American landscape Essayists examine a variety of U S places ranging from New Orleans and Charlotte to Milwaukee and Detroit exposing racism endemic in the built environment and acknowledging the widespread erasure of black geographies and cultural landscapes Through a combination of case studies critiques and calls to action contributors reveal the deficient normative portrayals of landscape that affect communities of color and question how public design and preservation efforts can support people in these places In a culture in which historical omissions and specious narratives routinely provoke disinvestment in minority communities creative solutions by designers planners artists and residents are necessary to activate them in novel ways Black people have built and shaped the American landscape in ways that can never be fully known Black Landscapes Matter is a timely and necessary reminder that without recognizing and reconciling these histories and spaces America s past and future cannot be understood

Human Ecology Frederick R. Steiner, 2016-02-16 Humans have always been influenced by natural landscapes and always will be even as we create ever larger cities and our developments fundamentally change the nature of the earth around us In Human Ecology noted city planner and landscape architect Frederick Steiner encourages us to consider how human cultures have been shaped by natural forces and how we might use this understanding to contribute to a future where both nature and people thrive Human ecology is the study of the interrelationships between humans and their environment drawing on diverse fields from biology and geography to sociology engineering and architecture Steiner admirably synthesizes these perspectives through the lens of landscape architecture a discipline that requires its practitioners to consciously connect humans and their environments After laying out eight principles for understanding human ecology the book's chapters build from the smallest scale of connection our homes and expand to community scales regions nations and ultimately examine global relationships between people and nature In this age of climate change a new approach to planning and design is required to envision a livable future Human Ecology provides architects landscape architects urban designers and planners and students in those fields with timeless principles for new creative thinking about how their work can shape a vibrant resilient future for ourselves and our planet

Arcadian America Aaron Sachs, 2013-01-08 Perhaps America's best environmental idea was not the national park but the garden cemetery a use of space that quickly gained popularity in the mid nineteenth century Such spaces of repose brought key elements of the countryside into rapidly expanding cities making nature accessible to all and serving to remind visitors of the natural cycles of life In this unique interdisciplinary blend of historical narrative cultural criticism and poignant memoir Aaron Sachs argues that American cemeteries embody a forgotten landscape tradition that has much to teach us in our current moment of environmental crisis Until the trauma of the Civil War many Americans sought to shape society into what they thought of as an Arcadia not an Eden where fruit simply fell off the tree but a public garden that depended on an ethic of communal care and whose sense of beauty and repose related directly to an acknowledgement of mortality and limitation Sachs explores the notion of Arcadia in the works of nineteenth century nature writers novelists painters horticulturists landscape architects and city planners and holds up for comparison the twenty first century s and his own tendency toward denial of both death and environmental limits His far reaching insights suggest new possibilities for the environmental movement today and new ways of understanding American history

The Dutch-American Farm David S. Cohen,1993-08 A rich and readable source of information and interpretation New York History Cohen presents a detailed description of the everyday life of early Dutch settlers in New York and New Jersey He gives special attention to the rise of the Dutch Reformed Church in these areas and particularly the denomination s transformation into a subculture that could truly be considered American Bookman s Weekly An impressive study of material culture Choice

Mapping the Invisible Landscape Kent C. Ryden,1993 Any landscape has an unseen component a subjective component of experience memory and narrative which people familiar with the place understand to be an integral part of its geography but which outsiders may not suspect the existence of Unless they listen and read carefully This invisible landscape is made visible through stories and these stories are the focus of this engrossing book Traveling across the invisible landscape in which we imaginatively dwell Kent Ryden himself a most careful listener and reader asks the following questions What categories of meaning do we read into our surroundings What forms of expression serve as the most reliable maps to understanding those meanings Our sense of any place he argues consists of a deeply ingrained experiential knowledge of its physical makeup an awareness of its communal and personal history a sense of our identity as being inextricably bound up with its events and ways of life and an emotional reaction positive or negative to its meanings and memories Ryden demonstrates that both folk and literary narratives about place bear a striking thematic and stylistic resemblance Accordingly Mapping the Invisible Landscape examines both kinds of narratives For his oral materials Ryden provides an in depth analysis of narratives collected in the Coeur d Alene mining district in the Idaho panhandle for his consideration of written works he explores the essay of place the personal essay which takes as its subject a particular place and a writer s relationship to that place Drawing on methods and materials from geography folklore and literature Mapping the Invisible Landscape offers a broadly interdisciplinary analysis of the way we situate ourselves

imaginatively in the landscape the way we inscribe its surface with stories Written in an extremely engaging style this book will lead its readers to an awareness of the vital role that a sense of place plays in the formation of local cultures to an understanding of the many layered ways in which place interacts with individual lives and to renewed appreciation of the places in their own lives and landscapes

Annapolis Pasts Paul A. Shackel, Paul R. Mullins, Mark S. Warner, 1998 The Archaeology in Annapolis project has been one of the most important undertaken by historical archaeologists Notable for its emphasis on public education and its use of citywide research it has carried out an innovative analysis of material culture to show how a wide range of social and economic classes residing in Maryland's capital responded over time to a changing world Annapolis Pasts offers a close look at the trend setting project Drawing on more than a decade of study it provides a cross section of the substantive and theoretical issues that Archaeology in Annapolis has explored The volume gathers the work of some of the most innovative authorities in historical archaeology along with that of younger scholars who participated in the project all of whom demonstrate the cutting edge approaches that have won it wide respect And despite differences in theoretical orientations all the contributors have used Annapolis's archaeological data to interpret the emergence of capitalism as both a dynamic market force and an equally dynamic body of social rules In studies of sites ranging from eighteenth century formal gardens to nineteenth and twentieth century African American neighborhoods the book explores the development of modern society as reflected in such examples of material culture as food printer's type tableware and landscape architecture showing how these features of everyday life were used to reproduce modify and resist capitalist society over three centuries It also investigates subordinated groups in Annapolis African Americans women the working class to provide insight into racism class structure and consumer society in the early years of the industrial revolution Annapolis Pasts clearly demonstrates that traditional objects of study like Georgian mansions and colonial crafts cannot be understood without considering their complete social and economic milieu It presents a fascinating mosaic of human activity that shows how archaeologists can interpret the different social temporal and theoretical pieces of a city's history and it provides anthropologists economists and historians with an example of the multifaceted effects of capitalism and industrialization in one corner of America

Big Plans Kenneth L. Kolson, 2003-11-03 This work springs from the idea that human aspirations for the city tend to overstate the role of rationality in public life The author explores the part serendipity plays in urban experience
