Heefner, 2025-05-05 A vivid tour of US military efforts to understand survive and command harsh environments worldwide and beyond Deserts the Arctic outer space these extreme environments are often seen as inhospitable places at the edges of our maps But from the 1940s through the 1960s spurred by the diverse and unfamiliar regions the US military had navigated during World War II the United States defense establishment took a keen interest in these places dispatching troops to the Aleutian Islands North Africa the South Pacific and beyond To preserve the country's status as a superpower after the war to pave runways and build bridges engineers had to understand and then conquer dunes permafrost and even the surface of the moon Sand Snow and Stardust explores how the US military generated a new understanding of these environments and attempted to master them intending to cement America's planetary power Operating in these regions depended as much on scientific and cultural knowledge as on military expertise and technology From General George S Patton learning the hard way that the desert is not always hot to the challenges of constructing a scientific research base under the Arctic ice to the sheer implausibility of modeling Martian environments on Earth Gretchen Heefner takes us on a wry expedition into the extremes and introduces us to the people who have shaped our insight into these extraordinary environments Even decades after the first manned space flight plans for human space exploration and extraplanetary colonization are still based on what we know about stark habitats on Earth An entertaining survey of the relationship between environmental history and military might Sand Snow and Stardust also serves as a warning about the further transformation of the planet whether through desertification melting ice caps or attempts to escape it entirely Parliamentary Papers Great Britain. An Age of Accountability John L. Rury,2023-10-13 An Age of Accountability highlights the role of test based accountability as a policy framework in American education from 1970 to 2020 For more than half a century the quest to hold schools and educators accountable for academic achievement has relied almost exclusively on standardized assessment The theory of change embedded in almost all test based accountability programs held that assessment with stipulated consequences could lead to major improvements in schools This was accomplished politically by proclaiming lofty goals of attaining universal proficiency and closing achievement gaps which repeatedly failed to materialize But even after very clear disappointments no other policy framework has emerged to challenge its hegemony The American public today has little confidence in institutions to improve the quality of goods and services they provide especially in the public sector As a consequence many Americans continue to believe that accountability remains a vital necessity even if educators and policy scholars disagree Resources in Education ,1988 Representations of Algebras Graham J. Leuschke,Frauke Bleher,Ralf Schiffler,Dan I. The Global Achievement Gap Tony Wagner,2014-03-11 Despite the best efforts of educators our nation s schools are dangerously obsolete Instead of teaching students to be critical thinkers and problem solvers we are asking them to memorize facts for multiple choice tests This problem isn t limited to low income school districts even our top schools aren t teaching or testing the skills that matter most in the global knowledge economy Our teens leave school equipped to work only in the kinds of jobs that are fast disappearing from the American economy Meanwhile young adults in India and China are competing with our students for the most sought after careers around the world Education expert Tony Wagner has conducted scores of interviews with business leaders and observed hundreds of classes in some of the nation s most highly regarded public schools He discovered a profound disconnect between what potential employers are looking for in young people today critical thinking skills creativity and effective communication and what our schools are providing passive learning environments and uninspired lesson plans that focus on test preparation and reward memorization He explains how every American can work to overhaul our education system and he shows us examples of dramatically different schools that teach all students new skills In addition through interviews with college graduates and people who work with them Wagner discovers how teachers parents and employers can motivate the generation to excellence An education manifesto for the twenty first century The Global Achievement Gap is provocative and inspiring It is essential reading for parents educators business leaders policy makers and anyone interested in seeing our young people succeed as employees and citizens For STEM Education Bryan Dewsbury, Susannah McGowan, Sheila S. Jaswal, Desiree Forsythe, 2024-09-24 Research demonstrates that STEM disciplines perpetuate a history of exclusion particularly for students with marginalized identities This poses problems particularly when science permeates every aspect of contemporary American life Institutions repeated failures to disrupt systemic oppression in STEM has led to a mostly white cisgender and male scientific workforce replete with implicit and or explicit biases Education holds one pathway to disrupt systemic linkages of STEM oppression from society to the classroom Maintaining views on science as inherently objective isolates it from the world in which it is performed STEM education must move beyond the transactional approaches to transformative environments manifesting respect for students social and educational capital We must create a STEM environment in which students with marginalized identities feel respected listened to and valued We must assist students in understanding how their positionality privilege and power both historically and currently impacts their meaning making and understanding of STEM Food-Energy-Water Systems:
