Exploring the Next Frontier Matthew Wilhelm Kapell, 2016-02-19 The 1960s and early 70s saw the evolution of Frontier Myths even as scholars were renouncing the interpretive value of myths themselves Works like Joe Haldeman's The Forever War exemplified that rejection using his experiences during the Vietnam War to illustrate the problematic consequences of simple mythic idealism Simultaneously Americans were playing with expanded and revised versions of familiar Frontier Myths though in a contemporary context through NASA's lunar missions Star Trek and Gerard K O'Neill's High Frontier This book examines the reasons behind the exclusion of Frontier Myths to the periphery of scholarly discourse and endeavors to build a new model for understanding their enduring significance This model connects NASA's failed attempts to recycle earlier myths wholesale to Star Trek's revision of those myths and rejection of the idea of a frontier paradise to O'Neill's desire to realize such a paradise in Earth's orbit This new synthesis defies the negative connotations of Frontier Myths during the 1960s and 70s and attempts to resuscitate them for relevance in the modern academic context

Progressing Science Education Keith S. Taber, 2009-05-29 Exploring one of the central themes in science education theory this volume examines how science education can be considered as a scientific activity within a broad post positivist notion of science Many students find learning science extremely problematic whatever level of education they have reached At the end of the 1970s a new approach to tackling learning difficulties in science was developed drawing on ideas from psychology and cognitive science and centred on the way students build up new knowledge in reference to their existing ideas Constructivism became the dominant paradigm in science education research for two decades spawning a vast body of literature reporting aspects of learners ideas in different science topics However Constructivism came under fire as it was recognised that the research did not offer immediate and simple prescriptions for effective science teaching The whole approach was widely criticised in particular by those who saw it as having anti science leanings In this book the notion of scientific research programmes is used to understand the development limitations and potential of constructivism It is shown that constructivist work in science education fits into a coherent programme exploring the contingencies of learning science The author goes further to address criticisms of constructivism evaluate progress in the field and suggest directions for future research It is concluded that constructivism has provided the foundations for a progressive research programme that continues to guide enquiry into learning and teaching science

Research in Technology Education Marc J. de Vries, Stefan Fletcher, Stefan Kruse, Peter Labudde, Martin Lang, Ingelore Mammes, Charle, 2018 With the increasing technology orientation in modern societies Technology Education is gaining more and more importance It should help in developing an understanding of technology as well as skills and self concepts to deal with technology However there is a lack of knowledge in how Technology Education operates and what its outcome will be Thus research work has to be done in different fields of Technology Education Upcoming academics of the CETE network have dedicated themselves to such research questions The Center of Excellence for Technology Education CETE is an international network consisting of six Universities University of Missouri University of Cambridge University of Luxembourg University of Applied Sciences and Arts Northwestern Switzerland Delft University of Technology and University of Duisburg Essen with the mission of development work One aim of CETE is to support the qualification of young academics in the research field of Technology Education Thus the present book will attempt to resolve the lack of research in Technology Education by presenting the research work of upcoming academics In this way CETE contributes to its development work by extending the research results in Technology Education as well as by supporting young academics Beside two basic articles about Technology Education research there are different studies and their results presented Three different drafts of studies offer future prospects for research results
