Distributing Silent Film Serials Rudmer Canjels, 2011-01-25 Tracing the international consumption distribution and cultural importance of silent film serials in the 1910s and 1920s Canjels provides an exciting new understanding of the cultural dimension and the cultural transformation and circulation of media forms Specifically he demonstrates that the serial film form goes far beyond the well known American two reel serial the cliffhanger Throughout the book Canjels focuses on the biggest producers of serials America France and Germany while imported serials such as those in the Netherlands are also examined This research offers new views on the serial work of well known directors as D W Griffith Abel Gance Erich von Stroheim and Fritz Lang while foregrounding the importance of lesser known directors such as Louis Feuillade or Joe May In the early twentieth century serial productions were constantly undergoing change and were not merely distributed in their original form upon import As adjusted serials were present in large quantities or confronted different social spaces nationalistic feelings and views stimulated by the unrest of World War I and the expanding American film industry could be incorporated and attached to the serial form Serial productions were not only adaptable to local discourses they could actively stimulate and interact as well influencing reception and further film production By examining the distribution reception and cultural contexts of American and European serials in various countries this cross cultural research makes both local and global observations Canjels thus offers a highly relevant case study of transnational transcultural and transmedia relations

Narratives of fear and safety
Kaisa Kaukiainen, Kaisa Kurikka, Hanna Mäkelä, Elise Nykänen, Sanna Nyqvist, Juha Raipola, Anne Riippa, Hanna Samola, 2020-09-01 The essays in this edited volume written in English and French tackle the intriguing problems of fear and safety by analysing their various meanings and manifestations in literature and other narrative media The articles bring forth new cross cultural interpretations on fear and safety through examining what kinds of genre specific means of world making narratives use to express these two affectivities The articles also show how important it is to study these themes in order to understand challenges in times of global threats such as the climate crisis The main themes of the book are approached from various theoretical perspectives as related to their literary and cultural representations Recent trends in research such as affect and risk theory serve as the basis for the discussion The articles in the volume also draw from disciplines such as gender studies and trauma studies to examine the threats posed by collective fears and aggression on individuals lives and propose ways of coping with fear These themes are addressed also in articles analysing new adaptations of old myths that retell stories of the past Many of the articles in the volume discuss apocalyptic and dystopian narratives that currently permeate the entire cultural landscape Dystopian narratives do not only deal with future threats such as totalitarianism technocracy or environmental disasters but also suggest alternative ways of being and new hopes in the form of political resistance

Liberation Theologies on Shifting Grounds Georges de Schrijver, 1998 Besides their insistence on praxis and the application of the Word of God to a given situation Liberation Theologies make ample use of tools of analysis to uncover root causes of oppression Now it is precisely with respect to these tools that Liberation Theologies today find themselves on shifting grounds In intra ecclesiastical circles cultural concerns have come to replace socio economic analysis whereas after the implosion of the East Bloc the liberationists proper also pay more attention to the issues of gender ecology and indigenous movements The contributions to this volume originating from various continents discuss to what extent this shift in emphasis is desirable and acceptable and conclude that the cultural focus cannot possibly invalidate but only enrich and complete the socio economic analysis They moreover try to assess the developments in light of globalization economics informatics on the one hand and postmodernity on the other Given the impact of western culture politics the question arises as to whether the native cultures will succeed in keeping up their religious core values and structures of solidarity two elements so indispensable for liberative commitments

The International

Legal System in Quest of Equity and Universality Laurence Boisson de Chazournes, Vera Gowlland-Debbas, 2021-10-18

Georges Abi Saab began his writing and teaching at a time when the process of decolonization and thereafter the quest for emancipation began to make its far reaching impact on the international scene producing significant changes in the international environment both quantitatively in increasing the number of nation States and qualitatively in changing patterns of interests and claims This was bound to result in new pressures on the international legal system itself and in a questioning of the traditional Eurocentric content of international law In his work and teaching Professor Abi Saab viewed the dynamics of international law as a function of two driving forces the emergence of the third world and the sense of injustice In his view the first driving force the emergence of the third world raised the problem of exclusion exclusion from participation in the elaboration of international law and the decision making process and exclusion as beneficiaries of the resulting rules of international law At the same time this new force introduced diversity into the international scene reflecting the richness of the international community in its different facets This process remains relevant today reflecting the contemporary problem of exclusion of new actors as well as their quest for participation The second driving force the sense of injustice posed a teleological problem for him that of defining community values in order that they capture the different facets of justice whether formal or distributive So long as there is no effective organic structure international law in his view will continue to remain effectiveness oriented reflecting rather than impacting on the structures of power Nevertheless it is undeniable that there is an on going process of development of community values and interests as Georges Abi Saab wrote with reference to international crimes law like all social phenomena is a continuous unfolding a continuous process of elaboration He has also considered that the dynamics of the international legal process itself can be captured from the perspective of international organizations as vehicles for change in the international system From his early writings Georges Abi Saab approached the United Nations Charter as a blueprint both normative and institutional for a certain type of international society International institutions with all their imperfections continue for him to be the means of realization of the law of cooperation which lies at the heart of his concept of the international system The themes selected for this volume in honour of Professor Georges Abi Saab are intended to reflect his unique and pioneering contribution to the field of international law The contributors are drawn from what he has always considered to be his large family of former students in his forty years of teaching Georges Abi Saab has acted as mentor to generations of students from all over the world who have benefited from his vision insights originality and creative and stimulating use of language The contributors also include colleagues and friends who share a similar vision of the international legal system
