Native Recognition Joanna Hearne,2013-01-25 In Native Recognition Joanna Hearne persuasively argues for the central role of Indigenous image making in the history of American cinema Across the twentieth and into the twenty first centuries

Indigenous peoples have been involved in cinema as performers directors writers consultants crews and audiences yet both the specificity and range of this Native participation have often been obscured by the on screen larger than life images of Indians in the Western Not only have Indigenous images mattered to the Western but Westerns have also mattered to Indigenous filmmakers as they subvert mass culture images of supposedly vanishing Indians repurposing the commodity forms of Hollywood films to envision Native intergenerational continuity Through their interventions in forms of seeing and being seen in public culture Native filmmakers have effectively marshaled the power of visual media to take part in national discussions of social justice and political sovereignty for North American Indigenous peoples Native Recognition brings together a wide range of little known productions from the silent films of James Young Deer to recovered prints of the 1928 Ramona and the 1972 House Made of Dawn to the experimental and feature films of Victor Masayesva and Chris Eyre Using international archival research and close visual analysis Hearne expands our understanding of the complexity of Native presence in cinema both on screen and through the circuits of film production and consumption
