Wildlife, Land, and People Donald G. Wetherell, 2016-10-01 Encounters with wild animals are among the most significant relationships between humans and the natural world Presenting a history of human interactions with wildlife in Alberta Manitoba and Saskatchewan between 1870 and 1960 Wildlife Land and People examines the confrontations that led to diverse consequences from the near annihilation of some species to the extraordinary preservation of others and skilfully finds the roots of these relationships in people's needs for food sport security economic development personal fulfillment and identity Donald Wetherell shows how utilitarian practices in which humans viewed animals either as friendly sources of profit or as threats to their economic and personal security dominated until the 1960s Alongside these views however other attitudes asserted that wild animals were part of the beauty mystery and order of the natural world Wetherell outlines the ways in which this attitude gained strength after World War II distinguished by a growing conviction that every species has ecological value Through a century in which the natural landscape of the prairie region was radically transformed by human activity conflicts developed over fur and game management over Aboriginal use of the land and over the preservation of endangered species like bison and elk Yet the period also saw the creation of national parks zoos and natural history societies

Drawing on a wide array of historical sources and photographs as well as current approaches to environmental history Wildlife Land and People enriches our understanding of the many layered relationships between humans and nature
