

Collecting Case Stories: Guidance for Projects

What are case stories?

Case stories are a means of capturing and recording the stories of individuals engaged in projects. Both direct beneficiaries and indirect beneficiaries can be the subject of a case story.

Case stories can provide a rounded picture of the beneficiary journey to improved health and well-being, e.g. what were they/their lives like before they engaged with the project? Why and how did they make changes? What's different as a result?

Why capture case stories?

The purpose of capturing Altogether Better case stories is to help us both evaluate and illustrate the impact of our work on improving well-being. They complement the information projects will be collecting from other sources (e.g. monitoring data, evaluation questionnaires). Case stories can be used:

- As qualitative evaluation data – which will be analysed in order to identify themes, patterns and issues in beneficiaries experiences and project interventions.
- To showcase success – e.g. the impact a project has had for individual beneficiaries
- As illustrative examples of 'good practice'
- To raise awareness of the needs of particular groups
- To influence practice or policy

How and when should case stories be captured?

Projects have already captured a number of individual beneficiary case stories. During 2010/11 each project will be asked to capture a specific number of additional case stories that represent the range of beneficiaries with whom they work who have achieved positive outcomes through their involvement in the project. Case stories are captured through the collaboration of a beneficiary and a project worker. The collaboration usually takes the form of an informal review meeting during which the beneficiary is invited to tell the story of their engagement with the project and any changes which have arisen from this. The project worker helps by asking questions and recording the story (eg by taking notes) and may then also add a commentary on the case from their own perspective.

A template has been provided which is designed to help projects record case stories. Projects should use this template to submit a written version of each case story. If you have any photographs, recorded comments or even film footage to help illustrate the case story, please send these with your case story by email.

Beyond open access: visions for open evaluation of scientific papers by post-publication peer review Nikolaus Kriegeskorte, Diana Deca, A scientific publication system needs to provide two basic services access and evaluation The traditional publication system restricts the access to papers by requiring payment and it restricts the evaluation of papers by relying on just 2-4 pre publication peer reviews and by keeping the reviews secret As a result the current system suffers from a lack of quality and transparency of the peer review evaluation process and the only immediately available indication of a new paper's quality is the prestige of the journal it appeared in Open access is now widely accepted as desirable and is slowly beginning to become a reality However the second essential element evaluation has received less attention Open evaluation an ongoing post publication process of transparent peer review and rating of papers promises to address the problems of the current system However it is unclear how exactly such a system should be designed The evaluation system steers the attention of the scientific community and thus the very course of science For better or worse the most visible papers determine the direction of each field and guide funding and public policy decisions Evaluation therefore is at the heart of the entire endeavor of science As the number of scientific publications explodes evaluation and selection will only gain importance A grand challenge of our time therefore is to design the future system by which we evaluate papers and decide which ones deserve broad attention So far scientists have left the design of the evaluation process to journals and publishing companies However the steering mechanism of science should be designed by scientists The cognitive computational and brain sciences are best prepared to take on this task which will involve social and psychological considerations software design and modeling of the network of scientific papers and their interrelationships This Research Topic in Frontiers in Computational Neuroscience collects visions for a future system of open evaluation Because critical arguments about the current system about these papers will focus on constructive ideas and comprehensive designs for open evaluation systems Design decisions include Should the reviews and ratings be entirely transparent or should some aspects be kept secret Should other information such as paper downloads be included in the evaluation How can scientific objectivity be strengthened and political motivations weakened in the future system Should the system include signed and authenticated reviews and ratings Should the evaluation be an ongoing process such that promising papers are more deeply evaluated How can we bring science and statistics to the evaluation process e.g.

should rating averages come with error bars How should the evaluative information about each paper e g peer ratings be combined to prioritize the literature Should different individuals and organizations be able to define their own evaluation formulae e g weighting ratings according to different criteria How can we efficiently transition toward the future system Ideally the future system will derive its authority from a scientific literature on community based open evaluation We hope that these papers will provide a starting point

The Implications of Cost-effectiveness Analysis of Medical Technology : Background Paper #2 United States. Congress. Office of Technology Assessment, 1981

Writing with Authority David Foster, 2006-06-28 Writing with Authority Students Roles as Writers in Cross National Perspective offers a comparison of student writers in two university cultures one German and one American as the students learn to connect their writing to academic content David Foster demonstrates the effectiveness of using cross cultural comparisons to assess differences in literacy activities and suggests teaching approaches that will help American students better develop their roles as writers in knowledge based communities He proposes that American universities make stronger efforts to nurture the autonomy of American undergraduates as learner writers and to create apprenticeship experiences that more closely reflect the realities of working in the academic community This comparative analysis identifies crucial differences in the ways German and American students learn to become academic writers emphasizing two significant issues the importance of self directed long term planning and goal setting in developing knowledge based projects and the impact of time structures on students writing practices Foster suggests that students learn to write as knowledge makers using cumulative recursive task development as reflexive writing practices He argues for the full integration of extended self managed knowledge based writing tasks into the American undergraduate curriculum from the onset of college study A cross national perspective offers important insights into the conditions that influence novice writers Foster says including secondary preparations and transitions to postsecondary study Foster proposes that students be challenged to write transformatively to master new forms of authorship and authority based on self directed planning researching and writing in specific academic communities The text also addresses contested issues of power relations in students roles as academic writers and their perception of personal authority and freedom as writers A course model incorporates significant self directed writing projects to help students build sustainable roles as transformative writers outlines change goals to help teachers develop curricular structures that support cumulative writing projects across the undergraduate curriculum and shows how teachers can develop self directed writing projects in a variety of program environments
