

Journal Entry One

Field Placement 2- Bill

I was beyond excited and thrilled to start working with the children and staff at my placement. The support staff are very friendly and supportive which made me feel comfortable and allowed me to jump in with my role. I've been mostly in a Grade ¾ but occasionally helping with the kindergartens with lunch and snack recess. One example I have relating to the course, is when working with a boy in a kindergarten class at lunch. I could see symptoms of him having behavioral issues and him being very physical towards me, not knowing what he was diagnosed with. I was trying to sit with him at lunch to keep him focused but he kept pushing me away using his hands and telling me that I'm not welcomed. I was trying to deescalate the problem as by telling him who I was and why I was there, although he still kept pushing me away as I stood up out of the seat. Thankfully the teacher was right beside me when this was happening, so she intervened and explained to the boy by what he did was not nice.

One of the challenges I noticed is how strict the teachers are in the school and how fast pace they are with their teaching. Being in a Grade ¾ split with a lot of ESL students, I found really stressful for the children and me when helping them. Many of the students I find within my class have anxiety and are getting bullied because they feel that they are behind in their work or not good enough compared to others. One thing the teacher suggested to me to do with the ESL students, was to take them outside in the hall and read to them at their pace and level so they could understand. I worked them through reading and sounding out letters and words and teaching them how to spell to start understanding English. I felt that that was better for the children's self-esteem so that they could be with all the same level student reading and learning which helped them.

One thing that I have learned from my placement so far, I need to be asking the teacher more questions about how she deals with the rules with the students. I want to learn that so I can be able to feel confident with raising my voice and knowing when the right time is so I can be respected and the students will listen to what I have to say. I want to improve my communication with my supervisor and implement new ideas with the teachers I am with.
