What About the Baby? Alice McDermott, 2021-08-17 A collection of essays lectures and observations on the art of writing fiction from Alice McDermott winner of the National Book Award and unmatched virtuoso of language and image Rebecca Steinitz The Boston Globe What About the Baby Some Thoughts on the Art of Fiction gathers the bestselling novelist Alice McDermott's pithiest wisdom about her chosen art acquired over a lifetime as an acclaimed writer and teacher of writing From technical advice check that your verbs aren't burdened by unnecessary heds and woulds to setting the bar I expect the fiction I read to carry with it the conviction that it is written with no other incentive than that it must be written from the demands of readers they'd been given a story with a baby in it and they damn well wanted that baby accounted for to the foibles of public life I've never subscribed to the notion that a film adaptation is the final imprimatur for a work of fiction despite how often I've been told by encouraging friends and strangers Maybe they'll make a movie of your novel as if I'd been aiming for a screenplay all along but somehow missed the mark and wrote a novel by mistake McDermott muses trenchantly and delightfully about the craft of fiction She also serves throughout as the artful conductor of a literary chorus quoting generously from the work of other great writers including Tolstoy Shakespeare Nabokov Morrison and Woolf beautifully joining her voice with theirs These stories of lessons learned and books read and of the terrors and the joys of what she calls this mad pursuit form a rich and valuable sourcebook for readers and writers alike a deeply charming meditation on the unique gift that is literature

The Last Kid On the Steeplechase, Resumes from Hell Jon Reed, Rachel Meyers, 2004-11 In this illustrated how not to former recruiters Reed and Meyers open up their own joke files and share highlights from the worst and funniest resumes they ever received Readings in Writing Courses Richard C. Raymond, 2010-12-01 As the title suggests this six chapter book responds to a question which in Western culture goes back to Plato Aristotle Cicero and Quintilian namely What should rhetoric teachers ask their students to read Primarily historical the first two chapters trace conflicting answers to the question above focusing on two constructive results of the debate the reinvention of rhetoric and writing as a discipline a coherent and growing body of knowledge and as a result the emergence of independent departments of writing free from departments of English free therefore to develop their own curriculum and to manage their own budgets Additionally the second chapter examines two destructive consequences of this debate the ban of literature from writing courses where students might profitably study both and as a result the often painful departmental splits which not only separate former colleagues but also cramp the pedagogy of those trained to teach both writing and literature More than a survey of key publications this chapter encourages readers to honor the discipline of rhetoric but to make a place for literature on their composition syllabi The next four chapters provide pedagogical support for these chief claims that literature can and should be taught in writing courses and that such readings need not distract students from the primary text their own writing On the contrary these readings motivate serious writing when students feel invited into a conversation on issues that touch their lives These pedagogical chapters then move entering professionals from the theoretical debate to the application of theory therefore the book would serve well professors of courses in composition theory particularly those who enjoy teaching the conflicts and preparing their graduate students to design assignments and courses that apply theories of learning reading and composing

Tracing the cultural legacy of Irish Catholicism Eamon Maher, Eugene O'Brien, 2017-04-06 This book traces the steady decline in Irish Catholicism from the visit of Pope John Paul II in 1979 up to the Cloyne report into clerical sex abuse in that diocese in 2011 The young people awaiting the Pope's address in Galway were entertained by two of Ireland's most charismatic clerics Bishop Eamon Casey and Fr Michael Cleary both of whom were subsequently revealed to have been engaged in romantic liaisons at the time The decades that followed the Pope's visit were characterised by the increasing secularisation of Irish society Boasting an impressive array of contributors from various backgrounds and expertise the essays in the book attempt to trace the exact reasons for the progressive dismantling of the cultural legacy of Catholicism and the consequences this has had on Irish society
