

Abstract

Abstract The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of a 12-week, 100% bodyweight-based resistance training program on muscle strength, body composition, and cardiovascular fitness in healthy young adults. The program consisted of three sessions per week, focusing on compound movements and core exercises. Results showed significant improvements in muscle strength, body composition, and cardiovascular fitness across all participants. The program was well-tolerated and effective for improving overall health and fitness.
