Humans Versus Human Resources:

Humans Versus Human Resources Robert Braathe, Huda Masood, 2015-01-12 It takes a human to put the human back into human resources With all the devices systems and tools available at our fingertips it takes people who are truly alive and truly human to make a difference in this world Enjoy our stories and research about humans strenuous survival in the HR dominant corporate world and their attempt to put the human back into human resources Robert Huda Washing the Brain □ Metaphor and Hidden Ideology Andrew Goatly, 2007-01-17 Contemporary metaphor theory has recently begun to address the relation between metaphor culture and ideology In this wide ranging book Andrew Goatly using lexical data from his database Metalude investigates how conceptual metaphor themes construct our thinking and social behaviour in fields as diverse as architecture engineering education genetics ecology economics politics industrial time management medicine immigration race and sex He argues that metaphor themes are created not only through the universal body but also through cultural experience so that an apparently universal metaphor such as event structure as realized in English grammar is in fact culturally relative compared with e g the construal of cause and effect in the Algonquin language Blackfoot Moreover event structure as a model is both scientifically reactionary and as the basis for technological mega projects has proved environmentally harmful Furthermore the ideologies of early capitalism created or exploited a selection of metaphor themes historically traceable through Hobbes Hume Smith Malthus and Darwin These metaphorical concepts support neo Darwinian and neo conservative ideologies apparent at the beginning of the 21st century ideologies underpinning our social and environmental crises The conclusion therefore recommends skepticism of metaphor's reductionist tendencies Human Systems Science and Cybernetics - Volume II Francisco Parra-Luna,2009-10-30 The subject Systems sciences and cybernetics is the outcome of the convergence of a number of

trends in a larger current of thought devoted to the growing complexity of primarily social objects and arising in response to the need for globalized treatment of such objects. This has been magnified by the proliferation and publication of all manner of quantitative scientific data on such objects, advances in the theories on their interrelations, the enormous computational capacity provided by IT hardware and software, and the critical revisiting of subject-object interaction, not to mention the urgent need to control the efficiency of complex systems where efficiency is understood to mean the ability to find a solution to many social problems including those posed on a planetary scale. The result has been the forging of a new academically consolidated scientific trend going by the name of Systems Theory and Cybernetics with a comprehensive multi-disciplinary focus and therefore apt for understanding realities still regarded to be inescapably chaotic. This subject entry is subdivided into four sections. The first, an introduction to systemic theories, addresses the historic development of the most commonly used systemic approaches from new concepts such as the so-called geometry of thinking or the systemic treatment of non-systemic identities to the taxonomic, entropic, axiological and ethical problems deriving from a general systemic cybernetic conceit. Hence the focus in this section is on the historic and philosophical aspects of the subject. Moreover, it may be asserted today that beyond a shadow of a doubt, problems in particular problems deriving from human interaction, but in general, any problem regardless of its nature must be posed from a systemic perspective for otherwise the obstacles to their solution are insurmountable. Reaching such a perspective requires taking at least the following well-known steps: a statement of the problem from the determinant variables or phenomena; b) adoption of theoretical models showing the interrelationships among such variables; c) use of the maximum amount of wherever possible quantitative information available on each; d) placement of the set of variables in an environment that inevitably pre-determines the problem. That epistemology would explain the substantial development of the systemic cybernetic approach in recent decades. The articles in the second section deal in particular with the different methodological approaches developed when confronting real problems from issues that affect humanity as a whole to minor but specific questions arising in human organizations. Certain sub-themes are discussed by the various authors, always from a didactic vantage, including problem discovery and diagnosis and development of the respective critical theory, the design of ad hoc strategies and methodologies, the implementation of both qualitative soft system methodologies and formal and quantitative such as the General System Problem Solver or the axiological operational perspective approaches, cross-disciplinary integration and suitable methods for broaching psychological, cultural and socio-political dynamisms. The third section is devoted to cybernetics in the present dual meaning of the term: on the one hand, control of the effectiveness of communication and actions; and on the other, the processes of self-production of knowledge through reflection and the relationship between the observing subject and the observed object when the latter is also observer and the former observed. Known as second-order cybernetics, this provides an avenue for rethinking the validity of knowledge such as for instance when viewed through what is known as bipolar feedback processes through which interactions create novelty complexity and diversity Finally the fourth section centres around artificial and computational intelligence addressing sub themes such as neural networks the simulated annealing that ranges from statistical thermodynamics to combinatorial problem solving such as in the explanation of the role of adaptive systems or when discussing the relationship between biological and computational intelligence

Care, Power, Information Alexander Stiglitz, 2019-12-05 This book is a critique and provincialization of Western social science and Global Northern academia by the author of The Digital Coloniality of Power It exposes shared colonial and extractive rationalities and histories of research higher education digitalization and bioeconomy while proposing in the idea of BluesCollarship a sketch for an alternative culture of worlding and commoning knowledge work and for making care matter in research and higher education In a discourse analysis and provincialization of research and higher education a tradition of elitist White Collaredness in academia and in the social sciences in particular is criticized and an alternative attitude towards the production transfer and use of knowledge BluesCollarship is proposed The latter is rooted in a different idea of what infrastructure is and in practices of decoloniality Noting the current political climate of propaganda and populism the persistence of social inequalities as well as of racism and misogyny it is proposed that how people give warrant for knowledge claims should be reviewed under different terms A coherent theme is that there is a genealogical root for current neo extractive and neo colonial rationalities in the Athenian idea of oikos which conflates family household and property In taking a distinctly writerly approach rather than giving ready made answers the book aims at permanently provoking readers at every turn to think further as well as before and beyond what is written but to do so in thinking together with Others Thus the book addresses scholars and students from across the social sciences who seek challenges to established ways of thinking in academia without simply replacing one canon for another This book is for those who think of themselves as knowledge and culture laborers in this age of precarization who seek to replace the university and cognitive capitalism with a pluriversity and an infrastructure built on knowledge and culture as fundamental values

Impacts of Study Abroad on Higher Education Development Nobuko Kayashima, Miki Sugimura, Kazuo Kuroda, Yuto Kitamura, 2024-08-10 This open access book is an exceptional contribution to the burgeoning fields of higher education development and higher education internationalization as it empirically examines the impact of the study abroad experiences of faculty members on individual and institutional development The research and its outcomes presented here utilize results from a large scale survey and interviews of faculty at ten leading universities in Malaysia Indonesia Vietnam and Cambodia The analyses show that the study abroad experiences of faculty members impact not only improvements in research quality and development of educational programs but also serve as the foundation for international activities at the university crucially important in today's higher education landscape. On the other hand, the research reveals the rapid development of higher education at the local and regional levels including the development of graduate programs for faculty training in the home country leading to increasing rates of study abroad within Southeast Asia. Through the analyses presented, this book offers a new understanding of higher education development and internationalization in Southeast Asia by examining the impact of study abroad on the academic profession, higher education institutions, and the higher education sector.

The Future of Work Environments

Werner Eichhorst, 2025-07-15. Werner Eichhorst examines how work is paradoxical in its very nature, both a necessity and a demanding burden, and considers what the optimum future of working environments could look like.

Flexible Assembly Systems. A.E. Owen, 2013-11-11. It has become clear in recent years from such major forums as the various international conferences on flexible manufacturing systems (FMSs) that the computer-controlled and integrated factory of the future is now being considered as a commercially viable and technically achievable goal. To date, most attention has been given to the design, development, and evaluation of flexible machining systems. Now, with the essential support of increasing numbers of industrial examples, the general concepts, technical requirements, and cost effectiveness of responsive computer-integrated flexible machining systems are fast becoming established knowledge. There is, of course, much still to be done in the development of modular computer hardware and software, and the scope for cost-effective developments in programming systems, workpiece handling, and quality control will ensure that continuing development will occur over the next decade. However, international attention is now increasingly turning toward the flexible computer control of the assembly process as the next logical step in progressive factory automation. It is here, at this very early stage, that Tony Owen has bravely set out to encompass the future field of flexible assembly systems (FASs) in his own distinctive wide-ranging style.
