

FERTILITY(HUMAN)

Human fertilization is the union of a human egg and sperm, usually occurring in the ampulla of the uterine tube. The result of this union is the production of a Zygote, or fertilized egg, initiating prenatal development. Scientists discovered the dynamics of human fertilization in the nineteenth century.

fertilized by sperm outside the womb, in vitro.

CORONA RADIATA

The sperm bind through the corona radiata, a layer of follicle

The process of fertilization involves a sperm fusing with an ovum. The most common sequence begins with ejaculation during copulation, followed with ovulation, and finishes with fertilization. Various exceptions to this sequence are possible, including artificial insemination. In vitro fertilization, external ejaculation without copulation, or copulation shortly after ovulation. Upon encountering the secondary oocyte, the acrosome of the sperm produces enzymes which allow it to burrow through the outer jelly coat of the egg. The sperm plasma then fuses with the egg's plasma membrane, the sperm head disconnects from its flagellum and the egg travels down the Fallopian tube to reach the uterus.

In vitro fertilization (IVF) is a process by which egg cells are cells on the outside of the secondary oocyte. Fertilization occurs when the nuclei of a sperm and an egg fuse to form a diploid cell, known as a zygote. The successful fusion of gametes forms a new organism.

CONE OF ATTRACTION AND PERIVITELLINE MEMBRANE

Where the spermatozoon is about to pierce, the yolk (cytoplasm) is drawn out into a conical elevation, termed the cone of attraction or reception cone. Once the spermatozoon has entered, the peripheral portion of the yolk changes into a membrane, the perivitelline membrane, which prevents the passage of additional spermatozoa.
