Mapping the Americas Shari M. Huhndorf, 2011-02-23 In Mapping the Americas Shari M Huhndorf tracks changing conceptions of Native culture as it increasingly transcends national boundaries and takes up vital concerns such as patriarchy labor and environmental exploitation the emergence of pan Native urban communities global imperialism and the commodification of indigenous cultures While nationalism remains a dominant anticolonial strategy in indigenous contexts Huhndorf examines the ways in which transnational indigenous politics have reshaped Native culture especially novels films photography and performance in the United States and Canada since the 1980s Mapping the Americas thus broadens the political paradigms that have dominated recent critical work in Native studies as well as the geographies that provide its focus particularly through its engagement with the Arctic Among the manifestations of these new tendencies in Native culture that Huhndorf presents are Igloolik Isuma Productions the Inuit company that has produced nearly forty films including Atanarjuat The Fast Runner indigenous feminist playwrights Leslie Marmon Silko's Almanac of the Dead and the multimedia artist Shelley Niro Huhndorf also addresses the neglect of Native America by champions of postnationalist American studies which shifts attention away from ongoing colonial relationships between the United States and indigenous communities within its borders to U S imperial relations overseas This is a dangerous oversight Huhndorf argues because this neglect risks repeating the disavowal of imperialism that the new American studies takes to task Parallel transnational tendencies in American studies and Native American studies have thus worked at cross purposes as pan tribal alliances draw attention to U S internal colonialism and its connections to global imperialism American studies deflects attention from these ongoing processes of conquest Mapping the Americas addresses this neglect by considering what happens to American studies when you put Native studies at the center

Schwartz,2016-07-26 A panoramic social history of hurricanes in the Caribbean The diverse cultures of the Caribbean have been shaped as much by hurricanes as they have by diplomacy commerce or the legacy of colonial rule In this panoramic work of social history Stuart Schwartz examines how Caribbean societies have responded to the dangers of hurricanes and how these destructive storms have influenced the region s history from the rise of plantations to slavery and its abolition to migrations racial conflict and war Taking readers from the voyages of Columbus to the devastation of Hurricane Katrina Schwartz looks at the ethical political and economic challenges that hurricanes posed to the Caribbean s indigenous populations and the different European peoples who ventured to the New World to exploit its riches He describes how the United States provided the model for responding to environmental threats when it emerged as a major power and began to exert its influence over the Caribbean in the nineteenth century and how the region s governments came to assume greater responsibilities for prevention and relief efforts that by the end of the twentieth century were being questioned by free market neoliberals Schwartz sheds light on catastrophes like Katrina by framing them within a long and contentious history of human interaction with the natural world Spanning more than five centuries and drawing on extensive archival research in Europe and the Americas Sea of Storms emphasizes the continuing role of race social inequality and economic ideology in the shaping of our responses to natural disaster The Last Turtlemen of the Caribbean Sharika D. Crawford,2020-10-26

Illuminating the entangled histories of the people and commodities that circulated across the Atlantic Sharika D Crawford assesses the Caribbean as a waterscape where imperial and national governments vied to control the profitability of the sea Crawford places the green and hawksbill sea turtles and the Caymanian turtlemen who hunted them at the center of this waterscape The story of the humble turtle and its hunter she argues came to play a significant role in shaping the maritime boundaries of the modern Caribbean Crawford describes the colonial Caribbean as an Atlantic commons where all could compete to control the region s diverse peoples lands and waters and exploit the region s raw materials Focusing on the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Crawford traces and connects the expansion and decline of turtle hunting to matters of race labor political and economic change and the natural environment Like the turtles they chased the boundary flouting laborers exposed the limits of states sovereignty for a time but ultimately they lost their livelihoods having played a significant role in legislation delimiting maritime boundaries Still former turtlemen have found their deep knowledge valued

today in efforts to protect sea turtles and recover the region's ecological sustainability Historic Cities of the Americas David F. Marley, 2005-09-12 With rare maps, prints, and photographs, this unique volume explores the dramatic history of the Americas through the birth and development of the hemisphere's great cities. Written by award-winning author David F. Marley, Historic Cities of the Americas covers the hard-to-find information of these cities' earliest years, including the unique aspects of each region's economy and demography, such as the growth of local mining, trade, or industry. The chronological layout, aided by the numerous maps and photographs, reveals the exceptional changes, relocations, destruction, and transformations these cities endured to become the metropolises they are today. Historic Cities of the Americas provides over 70 extensively detailed entries covering the foundation and evolution of the most significant urban areas in the western hemisphere. Critically researched, this work offers a rare look into the times prior to Christopher Columbus' arrival in 1492 and explores the common difficulties overcome by these European-conquered or founded cities as they flourished into some of the most influential locations in the world.
