Malawi and Ghana Yonah Matemba, Richardson Addai-Mununkum, 2021-03-15 Religious Education in Malawi and Ghana contributes to the literature on opportunities and complexities of inclusive approaches to Religious Education RE It analyses how RE in Malawi and Ghana engages with religious pluralisation and provides a compelling case for the need to re evaluate current approaches in the conceptualisation curriculum design and delivery of RE in schools in Malawi and Ghana The book explains how a pervasive tradition of selection involving exclusion and inclusion of religion in RE leads to misrepresentation and in turn to misclusion of non normative religions where religion is included but marginalized and misrepresented The book contributes to wider discourse of RE on opportunities as well as complexities of post confessional approaches including the need for RE to avoid perpetuating the continued legitimisation of selected religions and in the process the delegitimization of the religious other as a consequence of misrepresentation and misclusion Inspired by Braten s methodology for comparative studies in RE the book draws on two qualitative studies from Malawi and Ghana to highlight the pervasive problems of religious misclusion in RE This book will be of great interest for academics scholars and post graduate students in the fields of RE African education educational policy international education and comparative education

Industrial Relations in a Developing Society Lewis B. Dzimbiri, 2008 Which Way Social Justice in Mathematics Education? Leone Burton, 2003-02-28 This contributed volume explores equity and social justice within the field of mathematics education In part one Helga Jungwirth s introductory chapter provides a strong theoretical overview that is based in actual classroom behaviors and a typology that classifies the various interpretations found within this volume Also in part one Laurie Hart discusses developments in equity research in the United States Part two focuses on results of studies about social justice and their impact on learning in mathematics classrooms in various parts of the world For example in a chapter on Peru social justice does not just encompass gender but also inequalities in opportunities to learn such as problems of resources living and social conditions communal demands and language needs And part three focuses on computers as a resource to mathematics teaching The contributors raise several important social justice issues which have previously remained unresearched Although there are a number of chapters specifically dealing with gender many of the authors use one of the following strategies their gender specific questions are set in a wider socio cultural context they challenge what have threatened to become false orthodoxies or they raise other important issues These other issues include the meaning of democratic citizenship for mathematics classrooms the links between parents and children learning mathematics and the preconceptions of some teachers of underprivileged students in Australia Other chapters explore different forms of classroom communication participation and assessment The pieces on computers state that there is still not enough research to conclude whether computers in the mathematics classrooms are supportive of or detrimental to the learning of all students The one thing on which every author in this volume does agree is that social justice in mathematics education has still not been attained but that we must strive toward it to improve educational practices and society in general
