Improvement and Reform Paris S. Strom, Robert D. Strom, 2015-11-01 People generally acknowledge the superiority of adolescents in using technology tools needed for learning in the future The purpose of this book is to describe an online polling strategy that allows adolescents to make known how they view conditions of learning at their school A school improvement model illustrates how to combine results of student polling with stakeholders perceptions in the scheme of school reform Student polling differs from other strategies because the target for gathering data is a single school This deliberately narrow base for sampling student opinion ensures poll results have local relevance that can motivate stakeholder involvement and guide their response Over 14 000 secondary students have completed polls examined in the text These ten polls include career exploration time management selective attention and distraction motivation for Internet learning tutoring peer support cheating frustration cyberbullying and school stress Students are the stakeholders with the most to gain or lose in efforts to keep American education competitive Accordingly their views should be sought as part of decision making about reform When student opinion and adult observation are considered an intergenerational perspective can emerge that more accurately portrays institutional strengths and limitations School principals superintendents and state department of education leaders are invited to consider a collaborative project with the authors Software offers administrators rapid feedback on whole school results Finding out how special education gifted and talented and second language acquisition students view their conditions of learning gives additional insight about school improvement

Strom, Robert D. Strom, 2013-09-01 Until recently educators were expected to provide all the knowledge students would need to ensure their future However the Internet has altered conditions of learning in ways that motivate students to be more self directed and less dependent on direct instruction Neuroscience discoveries about brain functioning also urge schools to adopt thinking as an aspect of core curriculum Students who acquire thinking skills needed to locate information process and organize data generate creative and practical ideas communicate with all age groups and collaborate can adapt to technology change and social evolution Encouraging adolescents to choose some goals they pursue respects their need for autonomy Recognizing the need to amend certain goals is important so a person knows when change in personal direction is warranted Exploring careers in a low risk setting motivates realistic aspirations and helps students to shape their future Employer expectations for teamwork require attention Performing well in groups including peer and self evaluation yields productive thinking and is conducive to mental health The intended audience for this book is college students preparing to become teachers in preschool elementary or secondary education The book describes ways schools and families can support higher order thinking during childhood and adolescence Learning that occurs outside school is ignored by tests that reflect only classroom lessons New instruments that measure thinking are needed to enable transformation of school goals and evaluation of student progress Shifting to a dual emphasis on thinking and learning is a challenge for teachers of all grade levels The Reporter Robert Sutton
