Automatic Item Generation Mark J. Gierl, Thomas M. Haladyna, 2013 Automatic item generation AIG represents a relatively new and unique research area where specific cognitive and psychometric theories are applied to test construction practices for the purpose of producing test items using technology The purpose of this book is to bring researchers and practitioners up to date on the growing body of research on AIG by organizing in one volume what is currently known about this research area Part I begins with an overview of the concepts and topics necessary for understanding AIG by focusing on both its history and current applications Part II presents two theoretical frameworks and practical applications of these frameworks in the production of item generation Part III summarizes the psychological and substantive characteristics of generated items Part IV concludes with a discussion of the statistical models that can be used to estimate the item characteristics of generated items features one future application of AIG describes the current technologies used for AIG and also highlights the unresolved issues that must be addressed as AIG continues to mature as a research area Comprehensive The book provides a comprehensive analysis of both the theoretical concepts that define automatic item generation and the practical considerations required to implement these concepts Varied Applications Readers are provided with novel applications in diverse content areas e g science and reading comprehension that range across all educational levels elementary through university

Advanced Educational Technologies for Mathematics and Science David L. Ferguson, 2013-04-17 This book is the outgrowth of a NATO Advanced Research Workshop held in Milton Keynes United Kingdom in the summer of 1990 The workshop brought together about 30 world leaders in the use of advanced technologies in the teaching of mathematics and science Many of these participants commented that the workshop was one of the more productive and exciting workshops that they had attended It was not uncommon to see participants engaged in informal discussion far into the evenings and early mornings long after formal sessions had ended It is my hope that this book captures the substance and excitement of many of the ideas that were presented at the workshop Indeed the process by which this book has come about has given every opportunity for the best thinking to get reflected here Participants wrote papers prior to the workshop After the workshop participants revised the papers at least once In a few instances three versions of papers were written Some participants could not resist the urge to incorporate descriptions of some of the newer developments in their projects The papers in this book demonstrate how technology is impacting our view of what should be taught what can be taught and how we should go about teaching in the various disciplines As such they offer great insight into the central issues of teaching and learning in a wide range of disciplines and across many grade levels ranging from elementary school through undergraduate college education

Rethinking the SAT Rebecca Zwick,2013-04-15 Rethinking the SAT is a unique presentation of the latest thoughts and research findings of key individuals in the world of college admissions including the president of the largest public university system in the U S as well as the presidents of the two companies that sponsor college admissions tests in the U S The contributors address not only the pros and cons of the SAT itself but the broader question of who should go to college in the twenty first century
