Governance David Coen, Julia Kreienkamp, Tom Pogram, 2020-12-17 Climate change is one of the most daunting global policy challenges facing the international community in the 21st century. This Element takes stock of the current state of the global climate change regime, illuminating scope for policymaking and mobilizing collective action through networked governance at all scales from the sub-national to the highest global level of political assembly. It provides an unusually comprehensive snapshot of policymaking within the regime created by the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) bolstered by the 2015 Paris Agreement as well as novel insight into how other formal and informal intergovernmental organizations relate to this regime, including a sophisticated EU policymaking and delivery apparatus already dedicated to tackling climate change at the regional level. It further locates a highly diverse and numerous non-state actor constituency from market actors to NGOs to city governors, all of whom have a crucial role to play. The Protection of Community Interests in the International Law of State Responsibility Julia Lemke, 2025-04-29 This book redefines the traditional understanding of state responsibility. It presents a compelling argument that international law's effectiveness hinges on its ability to protect not only state interests but also those of the global community. Drawing from principles established in the Articles on the Responsibility of States for Internationally Wrongful Acts (ARSIWA), the book examines how states conceptualised as rational actors navigate collective action challenges. Through a law and economics lens, it sheds light on the role of international state responsibility in providing global public goods and safeguarding common pool resources. This interdisciplinary book offers valuable insights and normative suggestions for enhancing the ARSIWA's efficacy in promoting community interests. It will appeal to scholars and practitioners in public international law, law and economics, and international relations interested in a better understanding of international law's role in tackling pressing global issues.

Gauteng City Region GCRO's fourth Research Report builds on the foundations laid in the State of Green Infrastructure report. It assembles expert inputs and reflections from collaborative stakeholder discussions in what was known as the Green Infrastructure CityLab to illustrate important considerations for the development of a GI planning approach in the Gauteng City Region GCR. The report is divided into three broad sections. Part A introduces the theoretical underpinnings of a GI approach and builds an argument for the importance of incorporating GI into planning and infrastructure development in the GCR. Part B presents three pieces written by external experts. They consider how GI and ecosystem services can be valued by municipalities and how so-called grey-green infrastructure design solutions can be implemented in the GCR. Part C reflects on the stakeholder engagement process that has been undertaken primarily through the GI CityLab to deepen understanding of how GI can be embedded in municipal practice. Based on these research findings, this report concludes with a strategy for GCRO's next phase of work in its ongoing Green Assets and Infrastructure Project.

Well-being, Sustainability and Social Development Harry Lintsen, Frank Veraart, Jan-Pieter Smits, John Grin, 2018-06-14. This open access book examines more than two centuries of societal development using novel historical and statistical approaches. It applies the well-being monitor developed by Statistics Netherlands that has been endorsed by a significant part of the international statistical community. It features The Netherlands as a case study, which is an especially interesting example, although it was one of the world's richest countries around 1850. Extreme poverty and inequality were significant problems of well-being at the time. Monitors of 1850, 1910, 1970, and 2015 depict the changes in three dimensions of well-being: the quality of life here and now, later and elsewhere. The analysis of two centuries shows the solutions to the extreme poverty problem and the appearance of new sustainability problems, especially in domestic and foreign ecological systems. The study also reveals the importance of natural capital: soil, air, water, and subsoil resources, showing their relation with the social structure of the here and now. Treatment and trade of natural resources also impacted on the quality of life, later and elsewhere. Further, the book illustrates the role of natural capital by dividing the capital into three types: raw materials and concomitant material flows, bio raw materials, mineral, and fossil subsoil resources. Additionally, the analysis of the institutional context identifies the key roles of social groups in well-being development. The book ends with an assessment of the solutions.
