Huston,2008-09-04 Episodic memory is the name of the kind of memory that records personal experiences instead of the mere remembering of impersonal facts and rules This type of memory is extremely sensitive to ageing and disease so an understanding of the mechanisms of episodic memory might lead to the development of therapies suited to improve memory in some patient populations Episodic memory is unique in that it includes an aspect of self awareness and helps us to remember who we are in terms of what we did and what we have been passed through and what we should do in the future This book brings together a renowned team of contributors from the fields of cognitive psychology neuropsychology and behavioural and molecular neuroscience It provides a detailed and comprehensive overview of recent developments in understanding human episodic memory and animal episodic like memory in terms of concepts methods mechanisms neurobiology and pathology The work presented within this book will have a profound effect on the direction that future research in this topic will take The first and most current comprehensive handbook on what we know about episodic memory the memory of events time place and emotion and a key feature of awareness and consciousness Articles summarize our understanding of the mechanisms of episodic memory as well as surveying the neurobiology of episodic memory in patients animal studies and functional imaging work Includes 34 heavily illustrated chapters in two sections by the leading scientists in the field      Handbook of Stress and the Brain Part 1: The Neurobiology of Stress Thomas Steckler,N.H.

Kalin,J.M.H.M. Reul,2005-02-25 The Handbook of Stress and the Brain focuses on the impact of stressful events on the functioning of the central nervous system how stress affects molecular and cellular processes in the brain and in turn how these brain processes determine our perception of and reactivity to stressful challenges acutely and in the long run Written for a broad scientific audience the Handbook comprehensively reviews key principles and facts to provide a clear overview of the interdisciplinary field of stress The work aims to bring together the disciplines of neurobiology physiology immunology psychology and psychiatry to provide a reference source for both the non clinical and clinical expert as well as serving as an introductory text for novices in this field of scientific inquiry Part 1 addresses basic aspects of the neurobiology of the stress response including the involvement of neuropeptide neuroendocrine and neurotransmitter systems and its corollaries regarding gene expression and behavioural processes such as cognition motivation and emotionality Provides an overview of recent advances made in stress research Includes timely discussion of stress and its effect on the immune system Presents novel treatment strategies targeting brain processes involved in stress processing and coping mechanisms      Handbook of Anxiety and Fear D. Caroline Blanchard,Guy Griebel,David J Nutt,2011-09-02 This Handbook brings together and integrates comprehensively the core approaches to fear and anxiety Its four sections Animal models neural systems pharmacology and clinical approaches provide a range of perspectives that interact to produce new light on these important and sometimes dysfunctional emotions Fear and anxiety are analyzed as patterns that have evolved on the basis of their adaptive functioning in response to threat These patterns are stringently selected providing a close fit with environmental situations and events they are highly conservative across mammalian species producing important similarities along with some systematic differences in their human expression in comparison to that of nonhuman mammals These patterns are described with attention to both adaptive and maladaptive components and related to new understanding of neuroanatomic neurotransmitter and genetic mechanisms Although chapters in the volume acknowledge important differences in views of fear and anxiety stemming from animal vs human research the emphasis of the volume is on a search for an integrated view that will facilitate the use of animal models of anxiety to predict drug response in people on new technologies that will enable direct evaluation of biological mechanisms in anxiety disorders and on strengthening the analysis of anxiety disorders as biological phenomena Integrates animal and human research on fear and anxiety Presents emerging and developing fields of human anxiety research including imaging of anxiety disorders the genetics of anxiety the pharmacology of anxiolysis recent developments in classification of anxiety disorders linking these to animal work Covers basic research on innate and conditioned responses to threat Presents work from the major laboratories on fear learning and extinction Reviews research on an array of neurotransmitter and neuromodulator systems related to fear and anxiety Compares models and neural systems for learned versus unlearned responses to threat Relates the findings to the study diagnostics and treatment of anxiety disorders the major source of mental illness in modern society 26 % of Americans are affected by anxiety disorders
