Wording the World Roma Chatterji, 2014-12-01 The essays in this book explore the critical possibilities that have been opened by Veena Das s work Taking off from her writing on pain as a call for acknowledgment several essays explore how social sciences render pain suffering and the claims of the other as part of an ethics of responsibility They search for disciplinary resources to contest the implicit division between those whose pain receives attention and those whose pain is seen as out of sync with the times and hence written out of the historical record Another theme is the co constitution of the event and the everyday especially in the context of violence Das s groundbreaking formulation of the everyday provides a frame for understanding how both violence and healing might grow out of it Drawing on notions of life and voice and the struggle to write one s own narrative the contributors provide rich ethnographies of what it is to inhabit a devastated world Ethics as a form of attentiveness to the other especially in the context of poverty deprivation and the corrosion of everyday life appears in several of the essays They take up the classic themes of kinship and obligation but give them entirely new meaning Finally anthropology s affinities with the literary are reflected in a final set of essays that show how forms of knowing in art and in anthropology are related through work with painters performance artists and writers
