AN EIGHTEENTH-CENTURY BIOGRAPHY OF ARTEMISIA GENTILESCHI

Jesse Locker

It has long been a source of frustration to those interested in the Baroque painter Artemisia Gentileschi that one of her few early biographies leads the reader to what is little more than a tantalizing dead end. The biography in question is Alessandro da Morrona's Pisa illustrata nelle arti di disegno, a defense of the city's position in the history of art, which concludes its account of Artemisia's life with the surprising claim that the author learned where the artist had been buried from "Signore Averardo de' Medici nel tomo IV. di più Uomini Illustri Pisani."¹ This reference has puzzled scholars, for, although the Florentine patrician Averardo de' Medici (died 1808) was indeed a writer and owned a painting by Artemisia—a Susanna and the Elders, mentioned in several eighteenth-century sources—none of his writings appear under such a title. In fact, they have nothing to do with Pisa or painting at all and are instead collections of verse, reflections on literary themes, or translations of ancient poetry.²

Da Morrona, it seems, merely garbled his source's title beyond recognition. The text that he intended to cite is an essay by Medici entitled "Artemisia Gentileschi," which appears in the fourth volume of Memorie storiche di più uomini illustri pisani, an anthology published in Pisa in 1792 and edited by Angelo Fabroni (Fig. 1).³ Given da Morrona's muddled citation, not to mention the fact that Artemisia was neither Pisan nor a man, the work has remained outside of the Gentileschi literature for nearly two hundred years. Medici's essay is interesting on a number of fronts. First, it provides firsthand descriptions of several lost but formerly highly regarded works by Artemisia. Second, it casts new light on the mystery of her reputed burial in the church of San Giovanni dei Fiorentini in Naples. Finally, it provides a glimpse into a long-forgotten period, comprising much of the eighteenth century, when Artemisia's fame reached unexpected heights.

Biographical information about Averardo de' Medici is scarce.⁴ The head of a large and illustrious family, he had three sons and four daughters with his wife, Livia, daughter of the senator Filippo Guadagni. In addition to his fame as a writer, Medici was apparently considered an authority on Artemisia Gentileschi, a reputation that must have stemmed from his ownership of a Susanna and the Elders by the artist—a work that is now lost but was well known to eighteenth-century Tuscans.⁵ It was undoubtedly for this reason that the editor, Angelo Fabroni, asked him to contribute an essay on Artemisia to the Memorie storiche di più uomini illustri pisani.⁶ Fabroni was one of the leading figures of Tuscan intellectual life in the eighteenth century, an author and editor, a friend and correspondent of Giovanni Gaetano Bottari, and an acquaintance of Diderot and Rousseau.⁷ The Uomini illustri pisani—like Fabroni's better-known project, the Giornale de' Letterati di

Literary Anecdotes of the Eighteenth Century: Essays and illustrations [including: History of lexicons, and anecdotes of eminent lexicographers; Memoirs of eminent antiquaries, friends and patrons of Mr. Bowyer] John Nichols, 1812

On the Eighteenth Century as a Category of Asian History Leonard Blussé, Femmes S. Gaastra, 2016-12-05. The starting point of this volume is the scathing attack far reaching in its consequences launched in 1942 by J. C. van Leur on the views then current on the character and significance of the 18th century as a category in Asian history. His denial of European pre-eminence in Asian waters represented a direct attack on colonial historiography. The essays here derive from an international conference held 50 years later to assess the impact of van Leur's work. In part historiographic in part drawing on new research they aim to delimit the boundaries of European-Asian interaction and to provide case studies of what this period actually meant for the history of South and East Asia.

A History of England in the Eighteenth Century William Edward Hartpole Lecky, 1879

Constructing American Lives Scott E. Casper, 2018-07-25. Nineteenth-century American authors, critics and readers believed that biography had the power to shape individuals' characters and to help define the nation's identity. In an age predating radio and television, biography was not simply a genre of writing, says Scott Casper; it was the medium that allowed people to learn about public figures and peer into the lives of strangers. In this pioneering study, Casper examines how Americans wrote, published and read biographies and how their conceptions of the genre changed over the course of a century. Campaign biographies, memoirs of pious women, patriotic narratives of eminent statesmen, mug books that collected the lives of ordinary midwestern farmers, all were labeled biography, however disparate their contents and the contexts of their creation, publication and dissemination. Analyzing debates over how these diverse biographies should be written and read, Casper reveals larger disputes over the meaning of character, the definition of American history and the place of American literary practices in a transatlantic world of letters. As much a personal experience as a literary genre, biography helped Americans imagine their own lives as well as the ones about which they wrote and read.

Form and Purpose in Boswell's Biographical Works provides a detailed comparative analysis of James Boswell's three major biographical works The Life of Johnson, The Tour to the Hebrides, and the Account of Corsica. Through this examination the book challenges the traditional view that Boswell's biographical method developed in a simple linear progression from one work to the next. It argues that each of these works represents a distinct artistic achievement with Boswell consciously shaping and organizing his factual materials in ways that go beyond mere documentation. The book demonstrates that Boswell's talent as a biographer was not limited to presenting facts but involved a sophisticated process of interpretation and organization especially evident in The Life of Johnson where his portrayal of Johnson's character is built around a cohesive narrative structure. The study also highlights how Boswell's approach to biography evolved depending on the subject and context of each work. In The Account of Corsica Boswell uses a propagandistic approach to portray Paoli employing different dramatic techniques than those he used in later works. In contrast The Tour to the Hebrides presents a more static image of Johnson focusing on his public persona in unusual and often humorous contexts but without delving into his complex character as Boswell did in The Life of Johnson. By comparing these works the book offers a fresh perspective on Boswell's artistic abilities demonstrating that he was a far more deliberate and interpretive biographer than previously acknowledged capable of creating unified and compelling portraits of his subjects. This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact. Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology.
