3.5 Role and importance of the eight business functions

- When a business is founded by its owner, the entrepreneur, all the business functions are performed by the owner himself.
- As the business expands and more people need to be employed, the role and importance of certain business functions change.
- For example when production increases, people may be appointed to fulfil the marketing function and its promotions, advertising, etc.
- Should the business grow to a point that warrants the business becoming a company, the role and importance of the business functions will change again.
- Each function will have its own director to make strategic decisions pertaining to that function.
- Board meetings will be held to ensure that there is complete interaction and interdependence among all the functions.
