Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The participants were divided into two groups: a training group and a control group. The training group performed a 12-week program of aerobic and resistance training. The control group remained sedentary. Physical fitness was measured using a variety of tests, including a 10-minute step test, a 1-mile walk test, and a 1-mile run test. HRQL was measured using the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the training group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and HRQL than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve physical fitness and HRQL in sedentary, middle-aged men.
