I Am Radar Reif Larsen, 2015-02-24 At the birth of Radar Radmanovic all of the hospital electricity mysteriously fails When the lights are turned on again the staff is startled to see the healthy baby boy with unusually black skin born to the two stunned Caucasian parents Despite the father's joy at the successful delivery it is the mother Charlene who bears the brunt of the gossip and speculation and who becomes overwhelmed with her need to fix the skin color of her beloved Radar Though Charlene has her own problems following the birth including a newly heightened but crippling sense of smell she receives no help from the hospital staff A childbirth is an explosion the ancient physician says by way of explanation Some shrapnel is inevitable isn't it Just what was born in the long explosion of the Twentieth Century In the shrapnel of propaganda and colonialism genocide and racism the characters of I Am Radar hunt in the rubble for what life can still be salvaged Following a secret society of puppeteers and scientists who perform experimental art in the midst of violent conflict I Am Radar is a triumph of pure storytelling a testament to the liberating powers of the imagination In the civil wars of Yugoslavia two brothers walk shockingly different paths one into the rapacious paramilitary forces terrorizing the countryside the other into the world of avant garde puppetry in besieged Belgrade In Norway during the Second World War a group of resistance schoolteachers defy the German occupiers by stealing radioactive material from a secret Nazi nuclear reactor to stage a dramatic art performance with no witnesses deep in the Arctic circle In the years before Cambodia's murderous Khmer Rouge regime an expatriate French landowner adopts an abandoned native child and creates a life long scientific experiment of his new son's education in physics In the modern day Congo a disfigured literature professor assembles the world's largest library composed of perfect interlocking hexagons hidden within the jungle in the futile hope that the books will somehow cement a peace in the war torn country And through all these stories walks Radar Radmanovic a gifted radio operator from the New Jersey Meadowlands an epileptic with a strange past an uncanny ability to communicate with machines and all too ordinary white skin Written by acclaimed novelist Reif Larsen the author of The Selected Works of T S Spivet soon to be a major motion picture I Am Radar displays the same measures of charm and empathy tragic circumstance and original dialogue for which Larsen's last work was praised A sophisticated but addictive reading experience that draws on the farthest reaches of quantum physics forgotten history and performance art I Am Radar is a novel somehow greater than all of its parts a breath taking and unparalleled joyride through the worst that humanity has to offer only to arrive at a place of shocking wonder and redemption

I Am Radar Reif Larsen, 2016-03-29 Big beautiful ambitious It takes narrative magic to pull off such a loopy combination and luckily Reif Larsen has it to spare His prose is addictive and enchanting Los Angeles Times The moment just before Radar Radmanovic is born the hospital's electricity fails The delivery takes place in total darkness Lights back on everyone present sees a healthy baby boy with jet black skin born to the stunned white parents No one understands the uncanny electrical event or the unexpected skin color A childbirth is an explosion an ancient physician

American Literature in Transition, 1990-2000 Stephen J. Burn, 2017-12-28 Written in the shadow of the approaching millennium American literature in the 1990s was beset by bleak announcements of the end of books the end of postmodernism and even the end of literature Yet as conservative critics marked the century's twilight hours by launching elegies for the conventional canon American writers proved the continuing vitality of their literature by reinvigorating inherited forms by adopting and adapting emerging technologies to narrative ends and by finding new voices that had remained outside that canon for too long By reading 1990s literature in a sequence of shifting contexts from independent presses to the AIDS crisis and from angelology to virtual reality American Literature in Transition 1990-2000 provides the fullest map yet of the changing shape of a rich and diverse decade's literary production It offers new perspectives on the period's well known landmarks Toni Morrison Thomas Pynchon David Foster Wallace but also overdue recognition to writers such as Ana Castillo Evan Dara Steve Erickson and Carole Maso

Ends of Enlightenment John Bender, 2012-08-08 Ends of Enlightenment explores three realms of eighteenth century European innovation that remain active in the twenty first century the realist novel philosophical thought and the physical sciences especially human anatomy The European Enlightenment was a state of being a personal stance and an orientation to the world Ways of probing experience and knowledge in the novel and in the visual arts were interleaved with methods of experimentation in science and philosophy This book's fresh perspective considers the novel as an art but also as a force in thinking The critical distance afforded by a view back across the centuries allows Bender to redefine such novelists as Defoe Fielding Goldsmith Godwin and Laclos by placing them along philosophers and scientists like Newton Locke and Hume but also alongside engravings by Hogarth and by anatomist William Hunter His book probes the kinship among realism hypothesis and scientific fact defining in the process the rhetorical basis of public communication during the Enlightenment
