

Edith Wharton

Edith Wharton (born Edith Newbold Jones, January 24, 1862 – August 15, 1937) was an American writer and designer. Wharton drew upon her insider's knowledge of the upper-class New York "aristocracy" to portray realistically the lives and morals of the Gilded Age. In 1907, she became the first woman to win the Pulitzer Prize in Fiction, for her novel The Age of Innocence. She was inducted into the National Academy of Arts in 1928. Among her other well-known works are The House of Mirth, the novella Ethan Frome, and several notable ghost stories.

Despite not publishing her first novel until she was forty, Wharton became an extraordinarily productive writer. In addition to her 15 novels, seven novellas, and eighty-five short stories, she published poetry, books on design, travel, travel and lecture notes, and a memoir.

Many of Wharton's novels are characterized by subtle irony, and she is often credited with being the first to use the term "social realism" in her writing. Her work is characterized by a keen eye for detail and a deep understanding of the social mores of the Gilded Age.

Wharton's literary career began with her first novel, The House of Mirth, published in 1905. The novel was a critical success, and it established Wharton as a leading writer of the Gilded Age. Her subsequent works, including The Age of Innocence and Ethan Frome, further solidified her reputation as a master of the novel. Wharton's writing is characterized by its detailed and realistic portrayal of the lives and morals of the upper-class New York "aristocracy".

Immigration Industry and the Arts
Immigrant groups and the art industry exchanged ideas about the impact of immigration on the arts. The industry benefited from the influx of new talent, while immigrants found opportunities to showcase their skills. This exchange led to a more diverse and vibrant art scene, with immigrants contributing to various fields such as music, dance, and visual arts.

Wharton's novels often explore the complexities of social class and the impact of immigration on the arts. Her work is characterized by a keen eye for detail and a deep understanding of the social mores of the Gilded Age.
