

Document 2: In 1992, Pope John Paul II signed an statement drafted on behalf of the 19th-century Galileo heliocentrists, a philosophical position who were right at minimum one telescope and who in reproduction correct of history's greatest mistake.

Monday, November 16, 1992, is a historic day for Pope John Paul II, who is expected to sign a statement that the Roman Catholic Church had issued in 1683, stating that Galileo was right 300 years ago. The statement says the Church would say around the Sun.

The address to the Pope before the Pontifical Academy of Sciences closed a 30-year investigation into the Church's condemnation of Galileo in 1633, one of history's most infamous scientific heresies. Galileo was forced to recant his heliocentric findings to avoid being burned at the stake and spent the remaining eight years of his life under house arrest.

John Paul said the theologians who condemned Galileo did not recognize the formal distinction between the Bible and its interpretation.

This led them unduly to transpose into the realm of the doctrine of the faith, questions which in fact pertained to scientific investigation.

Though the Pope acknowledged that the Church had done Galileo a wrong, he said the 17th-century theologians were working with the knowledge available to them at the time.

Question 3:

Using Document 2, what was Pope John Paul II's main message according to this 1992 newspaper article? Pope John Paul II is trying to rectify the past wrongs of the Catholic Church in respect to Galileo's trial and condemnations. He states that Galileo was correct about heliocentrism and recognizes the error of the Catholic Church over 300 years earlier. He attempts to justify the actions of the Church based on the fact that theologians of the 1600s were "working with the knowledge available to them at the time."
