

Glory Movie Questions

1. How does the attitude of Colonel Robert Gould Shaw toward African-Americans change and why?

Colonel Shaw's attitude toward African-Americans changes over the course of the movie. At first, he is a white supremacist who believes that African-Americans are inferior and that they should not be allowed to fight in the military. However, as he spends more time with the 54th Massachusetts, he begins to see them as individuals and not just as a race. He becomes more sympathetic toward them and eventually comes to see them as equals.

2. What differences exist among the black soldiers who make up the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry? What does this tell you about the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America? What about their regions of origin, former status (enslaved), and educational background?

The 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry is a regiment made up of African-American soldiers from different backgrounds. Some were born free, while others were born into slavery. They come from different parts of the country, including the South, the North, and the West. This diversity reflects the different experiences of blacks in 19th-century America.

3. What attitudes did white soldiers have about the 54th? Did these attitudes change and why?

At first, the white soldiers in the 54th have a variety of attitudes toward the African-American soldiers. Some see them as inferior and treat them poorly, while others see them as equals and treat them with respect. As the movie progresses, the white soldiers' attitudes change as they learn more about the African-American soldiers and their experiences.

4. Were blacks treated equally to whites in the Union army? Explain.

No, blacks were not treated equally to whites in the Union army. They were paid less than whites, they were given less food and shelter, and they were often treated with disrespect and discrimination. However, they were allowed to fight in the military, which was a significant step forward for African-Americans at the time.

5. What is significant about Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender?

Colonel Shaw's decision to refuse to surrender is significant because it shows that he is willing to die for his men and for the cause of freedom. It also shows that he is a brave and courageous leader.

6. Did that incident end as you expected? What feelings or thoughts come over you last night?

The incident ended as I expected. The 54th Massachusetts was killed at the Battle of Fort Wagner. This was a tragic loss for the Union and for African-Americans. However, the 54th's bravery and sacrifice helped to change the way that the Union viewed African-Americans and paved the way for the Civil Rights Movement.
