

Reflection On Personal Identity

The dictionary definition of identity is the characteristics determining who or what a person or thing is. My personal definition of identity is similar but I believe it is characteristics that separate each person from each person. My identity is affected by many things such as my family, religion, cultural heritage, friends and the experiences I have lived through. These factors weigh differently for each person but for me, I think my friends and family are the most important factor. Your parents and siblings affect you the most because you spend almost every single day with them.

My parents have taught me all the basics. If you want to see the real me, put me in the midst of my family. In their midst I become happier, crazier, calmer, and an overall better person. I know that I'm a better person when I'm with them because they allow me to be my true self and I don't have to be afraid that I won't be liked. They are the ones who ensure I reach my goal because there is a sibling I need to compete with. It keeps my mind clear of distractions and constantly remind me of how important my future. A similar group of people who do this for me are my friends. They affect almost everything of what I do. For me behavior they influence me with what I do, what I enjoy, where I go and my interests. They have made my interests a lot to do with games and computers. This has led me to take information technologies in the college and I have applied for computer sciences.

They also affect my behavior because of all the time we spend together we start to copy each other and also challenge each other to see who can be the best at the goals we have that are similar. One of the factors that do not affect me is religion, although it does affect some other people. Read more

How To Start A Paper About Identity:

Defining an Identity P.J. Fensham, 2012-12-06 Research in science education is now an international activity This book asks for the first time Does this research activity have an identity It uses the significant studies of more than 75 researchers in 15 countries to see to what extent they provide evidence for an identity as a distinctive field of research It considers trends in the research over time and looks particularly at what progression in the research entails It provides insight into how researchers influence each other and how involvement in research affects the being of the researcher as a person It addresses the relation between research and practice in a manner that sees teaching and learning in the science classroom as interdependent with national policies and curriculum traditions about science It gives graduate students and other early researchers an unusual overview of their research area as a whole Established researchers will be interested in and challenged by the identity the author ascribes to the research and by the plea he makes for the science content itself to be seen as problematic

Writing Their Future Selves: Instructional Strategies to Affirm Student Identity Miriam Plotinsky, 2023-11-07 Whatever subject you teach you can encourage students sense of self worth I m a bad writer is a disclaimer every secondary teacher has heard many times Overcoming that negative self image Plotinsky argues is key to helping students build a positive academic identity and because of the vulnerability associated with sharing what we write the benefits of interrupting this particular form of deficit thinking extend far beyond English class Drawing on her years of experience as an English teacher and literacy specialist Miriam Plotinsky uses writing instruction as a powerful vehicle to examine how teachers can help students build a sense of themselves as legitimate valuable contributors to the world around them The chapters move fluidly through ways to build capacity such as celebrating student voice separating grading from class participation giving feedback that inspires trust and avoiding the labeling of students Along the way teachers in other content areas contribute insights into how the identity building strategies in the book can be applied to their own disciplines

Writing and Identity Roz Ivani?, 1998 Writing is not just about conveying content but also about the representation of self One of the reasons people find writing difficult is that they do not feel comfortable with the me they are portraying in their writing Academic writing in particular often poses a conflict of identity for students in higher education because the self which is inscribed in academic discourse feels alien to them The main claim of this book is that writing is an act of identity in which people align themselves with socio culturally shaped subject positions and thereby play their part in reproducing or challenging dominant practices and discourses and the values beliefs and interests which they embody The first part of the book reviews recent understandings of social identity of the discursal construction of identity of literacy and identity and of issues of identity in research on academic writing The main part of the book is based on a collaborative research project about writing and identity with mature age students providing a case study of one writer s dilemmas over the presentation of self a discussion of the way in which writers life histories shape their presentation of self in writing an interview based study of issues of ownership and of accommodation and resistance to conventions for the presentation of self linguistic analysis of the ways in which multiple often contradictory interests values beliefs and practices are inscribed in discourse conventions which set up a range of possibilities for self hood for writers The book ends with implications of the study for research on writing and identity and for the learning and teaching of academic writing The book will be of interest to students and researchers in the fields of social identity literacy discourse analysis rhetoric and composition studies and to all those concerned to understand what is involved in academic writing in order to provide wider access to higher education

Identity Papers Bronwyn T Williams, 2006-09-30 How do definitions of literacy in the academy and the pedagogies that reinforce such definitions influence and shape our identities as teachers scholars and students The contributors gathered here reflect on those moments when the dominant cultural and institutional definitions of our identities conflict with our other identities shaped by class race gender sexual orientation location or other cultural factors These writers explore the struggle identify the sources of conflict and discuss how they respond personally to such tensions in their scholarship teaching and administration They also illustrate how writing helps them and their students compose alternative identities that may allow the connection of professional identities with internal desires and senses of self They emphasize how identity comes into play in education and literacy and how institutional and cultural power is reinforced in the pedagogies and values of the writing classroom and writing profession Writing Performance, Identity, and Everyday Life Ronald J. Pelias, 2018-03-13 Writing Performance Identity and Everyday Life invites the reader into Ronald J Pelias world of artistic and everyday performance Calling upon a broad range of qualitative methods these selected writings from Pelias submerge themselves in the evocative and embodied in the material and consequential often creating moving accounts of their topics The book is divided into four sections Foundational Logics Performance Identity and Everyday Life Part I addresses the methodological underpinnings of the book focusing on the touchstones that inform Pelias work performative autoethnographic poetic and narrative methods These directions push the researcher toward empathic engagement a leaning toward others using the literary to evoke the cognitive and affective aspects of experience and an ethical sensibility located in social justice Parts II IV focus on artistic and everyday life performances including discussions of the disciplinary shift from the oral interpretation of literature to the field of performance studies empathy and the actor s process conceptions of performance the performance of race gender and sexuality and performances in interpersonal relations and academic circles

Entrepreneurial Identity and Identity Work Claire M. Leitch, Richard Harrison, 2019-05-17 Identities can potentially serve as powerful elements that both drive and are shaped by entrepreneurial actions Entrepreneurial identity is a complex construct with multidisciplinary roots and therefore there is scope to more fully enrich our theoretical understanding of identity and identity formation at both individual and organizational levels and their relationship to entrepreneurial processes practices and activities This book highlights two key features of contemporary research on entrepreneurial identity First to see it as a dynamic rather than a relatively fixed and unchanging feature shaped by different life episodes It is increasingly fluid multilevel and multidimensional comprising multiple subidentities rather than a univocal and unchanging self As such it has a profound effect not only on the way we feel think and behave but also on what we aim to achieve Accordingly it is vital that its dynamics are better understood particularly in determining how actors behave in an entrepreneurial context The book's second focus is on identity work as the process through which entrepreneurial identities are formed and shaped and the contributors demonstrate how the dynamics of identity formation relate to entrepreneurial outcomes in a range of individual and organizational contexts This book was originally published as a special issue of Entrepreneurship Regional Development
