Venice Desired Tony Tanner, 1992 If there is one city that might be said to embody both reason and desire it would surely be Venice a thousand year triumph of rational legislation aesthetic and sensual self expression and self creation powerful lovely serene Unique in so many ways Venice is also unique in its relation to writing London has Dickens Paris has Balzac Saint Petersburg has Dostoevsky Dublin has Joyce but there is simply no comparable writer for or out of Venice Venice effectively disappeared from history altogether in 1797 after its defeat by Napoleon From then on it seemed to exist as a curiously marooned spectacle Literally marooned the city mysteriously growing out of the sea the beautiful stone impossibly floating on water but temporally marooned as well stagnating outside history Yet as spectacle as the beautiful city par excellence the city of art the city as art and as spectacular example as the greatest and richest republic in the history of the world now declined and fallen Venice became an important site for the European imagination Watery dark silent a place of sensuality and secrecy of masks and masquerading of an always possibly treacherous beauty of Desdemona and Iago Shylock Volpone of conspiracy and courtesans in Otway an obvious setting for many Gothic novels Venice is not written from the inside but variously appropriated from without Venice the place the name the dream seems to lend itself to a whole variety of appreciations recuperations and and hallucinations In decay and decline yet saturated with secret sexuality suggesting a heady compound of death and desire Venice becomes for many writers what it was for Byron both the greenest island of my imagination and a sea sodom It also as this book tries to show plays a crucial role in the development of modern writing Tanner skillfully lays before us the many ways in which this dreamlike city has been summoned up depicted dramatized then rediscovered or transfigured in selected writings through the years
