Trends in Low Birth Weight Ratios, United States and Each State, 1950-68 Helen C. Chase, 1974 Abstract This report describes a study of low birth weight ratios in the U S from 1950 1968 The study was conducted by the Maternal and Child Health Project with funding from the Maternal and Child Health Service of the U S Department of Health Education and Welfare An introduction defines terms and describes data used throughout the report Variations in trends in low birth weight ratios are examined by geographic area state and type of attendant Correlates of low birth weight that are discussed include 1 color sex and plurality 2 gestation 3 birth order and maternal age 4 legitimacy 5 socioeconomic level 6 maternal weight gain 7 smoking and 8 fetal growth Although the basic causes of low birth weight are still not completely understood this study was able to relate low birth weight to selected population characteristics and to clarify the level and extent of low birth weight in the U S and in separate states individually Maternal Dietary and Lifestyle Patterns with Pregnancy, Birth, and Child Health Outcomes Airu Chia, Ling-Wei Chen, Jun Shi Lai, Shan Xuan Lim, 2023-12-05 To date limited evidence suggests that maternal preconception and pregnancy dietary patterns are associated with reduced risks of adverse maternal and child health outcomes such as gestational diabetes mellitus and preterm birth However there are insufficient studies examining preconception and pregnancy dietary patterns on birth weight outcomes such as gestational age birth weight for any conclusion to be made Additionally there is a relative paucity of studies investigating preconception postpartum and beyond postpartum dietary patterns Recent research has advanced from examining each modifiable lifestyle factor singly e g diet physical activity smoking towards a holistic approach of examining multiple lifestyle factors using composite healthy lifestyle scores Two large scale mother offspring cohorts in Ireland and the United States have shown that adherence to a healthy lifestyle during pregnancy and beyond pregnancy is associated with reduced risks of adverse offspring birth outcomes and childhood obesity These findings are consistent with data obtained from cross sectional studies based in China and Tanzania

Our Own Devices Edward Tenner, 2004-06-08 This delightful and instructive history of invention shows why National Public Radio dubbed Tenner the philosopher of everyday technology Looking at how our inventions have impacted our world in ways we never intended or imagined he shows that the things we create have a tendency to bounce back and change us The reclining chair originally designed for brief healthful relaxation has become the very symbol of obesity The helmet invented for military purposes has made possible new sports like mountain biking and rollerblading The typewriter created to make business run more smoothly has resulted in wide spread vision problems which in turn have made people more reliant on another invention eyeglasses As he sheds light on the many ways inventions surprise and renew us Tenner considers where technology will take us in the future and what we can expect from the devices that we no longer seem able to live without time has come to initiate a new program of research on the Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women Infants and Children commonly referred to as WIC. WIC is the third largest food assistance program administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). The program's scope is large, serving approximately 9.3 million low-income women, infants, and children at nutritional risk. Through federal grants to states, participants receive three types of benefits: 1) a supplemental food package tailored to specific age groups for infants and children; 2) nutrition education, including breastfeeding support; and 3) referrals to health services and social services. To cover program costs for fiscal year (FY) 2010, Congress appropriated $7.252 billion. Congress also appropriated $15 million for research related to the program for FY 2010. The timing of the funding for WIC research is propitious. In October 2009, USDA issued regulations that made substantial revisions to the WIC food package. These revisions are the first major change in the food package since the program's inception in 1972. Over the intervening years, WIC has expanded greatly. Medicaid coverage has increased, large changes have occurred in the racial and ethnic backgrounds and socioeconomic status of WIC participants, as well as in public health services, and obesity rates have increased substantially among the general population. To guide its planning for the use of the $15 million allocated for WIC research, the Food and Nutrition Service of USDA asked the Institute of Medicine to conduct a two-day public workshop on emerging research needs for WIC. As requested, the workshop included presentations and discussions to illuminate issues related to future WIC research, issues, methodological challenges, and solutions. The workshop also planned for a program of research to determine the effects of WIC on maternal and child health outcomes.
