Showroom City John Joe Schlichtman,2022-06-07 A unique and engaging account of local urban decision making within the globalizing world High Point North Carolina is known as the Furniture Capital of the World Once a manufacturing stronghold most of its furniture factories have closed over the past forty years with production shipped off to low wage countries Yet as manufacturing left the city tightened its hold on a biannual global exposition that serves as the world s furniture fashion runway At the High Point Market visitors from more than one hundred nations traverse twelve million square feet of meticulous design Downtown buildings once courthouses movie theaters post offices and gas stations are now chic showroom spaces even as many sit empty between each exposition In Showroom City John Joe Schlichtman applies an ethnographic lens to the global exposition s relationship with High Point after it defeated rival Chicago in the 1960s and established itself as the world s dominant furniture center In recent decades following trends in global finance private equity firms were increasingly behind downtown High Point s real estate transactions coordinated by buyers far removed from the region Then in one massive transaction in 2011 a firm funded by Bain Capital purchased every major showroom building and the majority of downtown real estate was under one owner Showroom City is a story of exclusionary growth and unchecked development of a city flailing to fill the void left by its dwindling factories But beyond that Schlichtman engages the general lessons behind both High Point s deindustrialization and its stunning reinvention as a furniture fashion merchandising and design node With great nuance he delves deeply to reveal how power operates locally and how citizens may affirm exploit influence and resist the takeover of their community Farmers' Guide ,1904 The Donkey and the Boat Chris Wickham,2023-03-16 A new account of the Mediterranean economy in the 10th to 12th centuries forcing readers to entirely rethink the underlying logic to medieval economic systems Chris Wickham re examines documentary and archaeological sources to give a detailed account of both individual economies and their relationships with each other Chris Wickham offers a new account of the Mediterranean economy in the tenth to twelfth centuries based on a completely new look at the sources documentary and archaeological Our knowledge of the Mediterranean economy is based on syntheses which are between 50 and 150 years old they are based on outdated assumptions and restricted data sets and were written before there was any usable archaeology and Wickham contends that they have to be properly rethought This is the first book ever to give a fully detailed comparative account of the regions of the Mediterranean in this period in their internal economies and in their relationships with each other It focusses on Egypt Tunisia Sicily the Byzantine empire Islamic Spain and Portugal and north central Italy and gives the first comprehensive account of the changing economies of each only Byzantium has a good prior synthesis It aims to force our rethinking of how economies worked in the medieval Mediterranean It also offers a rethinking of how we should understand the underlying logic of the medieval economy in general

Wildlife Trade and Animal Victimization Ragnhild Aslaug Sollund, 2025-03-31 This book examines the trade in nonhuman animals of endangered wild species Wildlife trafficking is after loss of habitat the biggest threat to many animal species and biodiversity This book draws on extensive empirical data from Norway to highlight the parallel legal and illegal markets the motivation of traders animal victimization the weaknesses of existing regulatory frameworks and the difficulties of legal enforcement As a long time signatory of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora and a rich consumer country Norway provides the perfect case for investigating the consequences of legalising or banning wildlife trade The work applies a green non speciesist theoretical perspective to analyse empirical data covering approximately 350 cases as well as qualitative interviews with law enforcement agencies and confiscation reports from customs The book will be an essential resource for researchers and academics in green criminology global criminology environmental law and environmental studies It will also be of value to professionals working in wildlife and animal welfare policies and enforcement such as governmental and non governmental organizations
