Sedan Rear Section Without Trunk

Roof Rail Cover Panels

The 1934 metal panels of the roof structure are bolted, as well as nailed to the roof crown rails and rear roof bow. The bolts mentioned are spaced about a foot apart, having the sleeve nuts. (See Illustration No. 61 at A) fitted into counterbores in the underside of the crown rails and rear roof bow above the headlining.

The panels are insulated at all contacts with the wood roof parts with either insulating compound or silencer tape or both.

On the roof side rails these panels are also nailed and bolted above the door openings. These bolt heads above the doorways are concealed by being covered with the roof rail facings. The nuts may be found on the upper side of the side rails and are made accessible for servicing by loosening the edge of the headlining.

The roof side cover panels are oxyacetylene welded to the shroud upper panel at a point about eight inches back from the top of the front pillar (see Illustration No. 27 at A) and are electrically butt welded to the quarter panel just to the front of the rear body pillar (see Illustration Nos. 27 and 28). There is very little possibility, if any, of a slippage of these panels on the wood rails, due to the extra precaution taken by installing bolts as well as nails in the panels.

Welding Cracked Panels

Cracked panels should have all traces of solder and paint scraped or burned away before welding begins.

A very small drop of solder in a weld will lower the tensile strength of the weld to an amazing degree.

If the fracture was brazed before, all traces of brass or bronze should be removed or cut away as welding must not be attempted where panel is contaminated with a trace of non-ferrous metals, such as lead, tin, zinc, copper, brass, etc.

Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-02-28 The degradation of ecosystems including forests and the associated loss of biodiversity particularly due to human induced threats and climate change has gained increased attention from scientists and policymakers The Millennium Ecosystem Assessment presented a new conceptual framework that puts ecosystem services at the centre and links human well being to the impacts on ecosystems of changes in natural resources The Economics of Ecosystems and Biodiversity initiative drew further attention to the economic benefits of conserving ecosystems and biodiversity supporting the idea that economic instruments if appropriately applied developed and interpreted can inform policy and decision making processes Only a few ecosystem services however have explicit market value and are traded in open markets many especially those categorized as having passive use value remain invisible and are rarely accounted for in traditional economic systems The failure to appropriately consider the full economic value of ecosystem services in decision making enables the continued degradation and loss of ecosystems and biodiversity Most ecosystem services are considered public goods and tend to be overexploited by society Many methods have been applied to the economic valuation of ecosystem services The use of these methods as well as the interpretation of their results requires familiarity with the ecological political normative and socio economic context and the science of economics Recognizing demonstrating and capturing the value of ecosystem services can play an important role in setting policy directions for ecosystem management and conservation and thus in increasing the provision of ecosystem services and their contributions to human well being The aim of this manual is to enhance understanding of ecosystem services and their valuation The specific target group comprises governmental officers in planning units and field level officers and practitioners in key government departments in Bangladesh responsible for project development including the Ministry of Environment and Forests and its agencies Most of the examples and case studies presented herein therefore are tailored to the Bangladesh context but the general concepts approaches and methods can be applied to a broad spectrum of situations This manual focuses on valuing forest related ecosystem services including those provided by trees outside forests It is expected to improve valuation efforts and help ensure the better use of such values in policymaking and decision making Among other things the manual explores the basics of financial mathematics e g the time value of money discounting cost benefit analysis and profitability and risk indicators the main methods of economic valuation examples of the valuation of selected ecosystem services and inputs for considering values in decision making Manual Training Magazine Charles
