Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your

Metalevel Architectures and Separation of Crosscutting Concerns Akinori Yonezawa, Satoshi Matsuoka, 2003-06-30 This volume constitutes the proceedings of REFLECTION 2001 the Third International Conference on Metalevel Architectures and Separation of Crosscutting Concerns which was held in Kyoto September 25-28 2001 Metalevel architectures and reflection have drawn the attention of researchers and practitioners throughout computer science Reflective and metalevel techniques are being used to address real world problems in such areas as programming languages operating systems databases distributed computing expert systems and web computing Separation of concerns has been a guiding principle of software engineering for nearly 30 years but its known benefits are seldom fully achieved in practice This is primarily because traditional mechanisms are not powerful enough to handle many kinds of concerns that occur in practice Over the last 10 years to overcome the limitations of traditional frameworks many researchers including several from the reflection community have proposed new approaches For the first time papers on advanced approaches to separation of concerns were explicitly solicited Following the success of previous conferences such as IMSA 92 in Tokyo Reflection 96 in San Francisco and Reflection 99 in Saint Malo we hope that the conference provided an excellent forum for researchers with a broad range of interests in metalevel architectures reflective techniques and separation of concerns in general
