1. Define company.
Ans:
A company is an artificial person created by law. The capital of a company is collected by issuing shares to the people known as shareholders. The management of a company is done by the board of directors which is elected by the shareholders. NEB may ask several questions on the above with full reference to the set as needed. NEB expects this answer because it is a basic concept of the company.

2. What is issued capital?
Ans:
The amount of nominal value held by the shareholders is called the issued share capital. It represents the part value of the shares which are distributed to the shareholders. Issued share capital and share premium form the share account of the shareholders in the firm. NEB may ask several questions on the above with full reference to the set as needed. NEB expects this answer because it is a basic concept of the company.

3. What is income statement?
Ans:
An income statement is one of the company's financial statements and shows the company's revenues and expenses during a particular period. It indicates how income is generated from the company's operations and how it is used. NEB may ask several questions on the above with full reference to the set as needed. NEB expects this answer because it is a basic concept of the company.

4. State any two objectives of cost account.
