

A close-up, low-angle shot of the front left side of a bright blue car. The car's body is highly reflective, showing clear reflections of the surrounding environment, including a white building and a green lawn. The front headlight is prominent, featuring a clear lens and an orange turn signal. Below the headlight, a black plastic bumper guard is visible. The car is parked on a dark asphalt surface. The text "50,000 Miles" is overlaid in a large, white, serif font across the lower half of the image, partially covering the car's body and wheel.

and optimizing the impact of the natural environment are brought together with clear policy thinking about what we need to do. The timing is good because the impact of this growing segment of society will have major repercussions on health care for the next 50-70 years.

Stephan Verderber Ph.D. A comprehensive guide to designing housing for the world's aging population. The dilemma of helping older people maintain their independence through better housing with services is growing. This book presents innovative solutions for those who create and provide housing for the world's increasingly longer living population. By focusing on three specific housing and service arrangements, it offers alternatives that provide greater freedom of choice than the current living arrangements that exist today. It presents selected examples of housing and service solutions from the US, Sweden, Denmark, and the Netherlands to stimulate thinking about the possibilities of community-based service models.

Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population looks at a trio of options for housing the oldest old: the Dutch Apartment Condo for Life Model, AFL decentralized Small Green Houses, and the provision of enhanced personal and health care for people who want to stay in their own home. It offers unique and eye-opening chapters covering what older people want, what age changes affect independence, demographics and living arrangements, how long-term care is defined, concepts and objectives for housing the frail, care giving and management practices that avoid an institutional lifestyle, innovative case studies, programs that encourage staying at home with service assistance, therapeutic use of outdoor spaces, how technology will help people stay independent and more. Based on the author's numerous conversations with other experts as well as his examinations of high-quality settings from Northern Europe and the US, Building case study examples showcase innovative and compassionate solutions. In-depth coverage of three major systems that work. Examines successful programs such as PACE, Friendly Cities, NORC, and the Village to Village Network to demonstrate the progress made in helping older frail people stay in their own homes for as long as possible.

Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population: Redefining Assisted Living for the Mentally and Physically Frail is an important book for those who create design and manage assisted living and skilled nursing facilities as well as for those who set policies regarding health and personal care for our world's aging society.
