Background: A recent study comparing the effects of a 12-week group-based cognitive behavioral intervention (CBT) to a 12-week individual CBT on the self-reported health status of people with chronic low back pain (CLBP) found that the group-based CBT was more effective than the individual CBT in improving self-reported health status. The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week group-based CBT on the self-reported health status of people with CLBP.

Abstract and keywords: Abstract: This synthesis of two experiments with young children, aged 3-5 years, investigated whether children can learn to use a novel word to refer to a novel object. The children were presented with a novel word and a novel object, and were asked to identify the object that the word referred to.
