Singh,Christian Huggel,2017-12-05 This book discusses the science causes impacts and risk reduction strategies for climate change and disasters It focuses on the use of traditional knowledge new innovation and education to build a culture of safety and resilience at all levels in order to promote sustainable development goals in general and disaster risk reduction in particular. The global climate has changed substantially over the last century. There is strong evidence of global climate change in the form of increase in air and sea surface temperature, recession of glaciers, changes and shifting of climate regimes, increasing number of extreme events and sea levels changes. The increasing frequency of climate change induced disasters in particular is posing a threat to resilience, lives and livelihoods at global, regional and local levels. Major ecosystems of the world have experienced several climate induced disaster events in recent past. This book provides new insights into the occurrence and impacts of climatic extremes and strategies for disaster risk reduction. It includes studies on rainfall and temperature trends, floods and drought disasters, weather and climatic related disasters in mountains, changes in plant activities, risk assessment and responses in different ecosystems of the world. The book is particularly useful for environmental and disaster managers, researchers and graduate students as well as policy makers.

Energy Efficiency Applications in Buildings presents an investigation into the energy use and measures to improve the energy efficiency of existing building stock in the UK. The aim of this research is to assess the domestic energy use of statistically representative residential buildings and their occupants' thermal comfort by considering the significant impact of overheating risks on energy consumption and occupants' well-being. Divided into two volumes, these books present energy consumption and thermal comfort in the construction sector as a complex socio-technical problem that involves the analysis of an intrinsic interrelationship amongst dwellings, occupants and the environment. Using case studies, the authors demonstrate the significance of improving energy efficiency and its impact on occupants during long-term heatwaves in the summer. Additionally, the volumes demonstrate how dynamic thermal energy simulation can be used as a learning laboratory for future trends in housing energy consumption reduction.

Volume 1: Theories, Methods and Tools presents the background to the research and the assessment methods and tools adopted by the research team. Volume 2: Performance Evaluation and Retrofitting Strategies describes the case studies and building performance and post-occupancy evaluations before making strategic policy and retrofitting recommendations. The research and roadmap presented in these volumes can be used as a guidance tool for building energy modelling and performance simulation, enabling architects, building engineers and other practitioners to close the gap between the current understanding and the actual performance of existing building stocks.

Soil Temperature and Weather Conditions James E. Carson, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, 1961. An investigation was made of the energy exchange at the air-soil interface. The temperature regime in the soil and the thermal response of the soil to various meteorological parameters such as sunshine, air temperature and wind speed were studied. A series of case studies showing the temperature response of the soil in several typical weather situations were prepared and analyzed A set of multiple regression equations was calculated to show quantitatively the temperature change in the soil as a result of a given change in the external meteorological conditions The diurnal and annual cycles of soil and air temperature air soil temperature difference and heat flux in the soil were studied In addition the annual cycle of daily range of soil temperature and the inter diurnal temperature variability were analyzed Data on frost in the soil are presented     The Journal of the Board of Agriculture ,1906     Willing's Press Guide and Advertisers' Directory and Handbook ,1908     The Parliamentary Debates (official Report).
