

Pyramid of Energy Packet

Very important to the understanding of the energy flow through the ecosystem is the concept of energy packets, also called trophic levels, which are defined as follows:

1st trophic level: organisms that obtain their energy from the sun (autotrophs) - producers (plants, algae, cyanobacteria, etc.)
2nd trophic level: organisms that obtain their energy from the 1st trophic level (herbivores) - consumers (insects, small mammals, etc.)
3rd trophic level: organisms that obtain their energy from the 2nd trophic level (carnivores) - consumers (snakes, hawks, etc.)
4th trophic level: organisms that obtain their energy from the 3rd trophic level (top predators) - consumers (wolves, eagles, etc.)

The energy flow through the ecosystem is represented by the following diagram:

The diagram illustrates the flow of energy from the sun to producers (1st trophic level). From producers, energy flows to primary consumers (2nd trophic level), then to secondary consumers (3rd trophic level), and finally to tertiary consumers (4th trophic level). The energy flow is represented by arrows pointing from the sun to producers, and then from producers to each successive level of consumers.
