and faculty and professional developers of distance learning tools Handbook of Electronic Assistive Technology Ladan Najafi, Donna Cowan, 2018-11-15 Electronic Assistive Technology EAT is a subset of a wider range of products and services known as Assistive Technology AT AT is designed to support and enable people with disabilities either acquired or congenital to participate in activities with greater independence and safety With a global aging population it has an important role to play in enabling and supporting those with disability and their carers Handbook of Electronic Assistive Technology discusses a range of commonly available or emerging electronic assistive technologies It provides historical background advice when assessing for these devices and references different models of provision It includes both medical and engineering aspects of provision It is anticipated that the book will support students trainees and newly qualified Assistive Technology Practitioners to develop their understanding of the field by considering the variables that could potentially influence the decision making process when assessing for and providing this equipment It also provides a reference point for those already practicing in this field and offers coverage of a broader range of technologies than clinicians may be exposed to in their daily work This is the first reference book to focus on a comprehensive set of electronic assistive technologies and discuss their clinical application Provides comprehensive coverage of electronic assistive devices Gives an overview of physical and cognitive pathologies and approaches for utilizing electronic assistive devices for individuals affected by these pathologies Covers essentials for assistive technology practitioners human factors and technologies Dyslexia Gavin Reid, 2016-03-21 Newly updated Gavin Reid's best selling handbook remains an essential resource for those helping dyslexic individuals of all ages from preschoolers to adults in the workplace Combines theoretical explanations the latest research and practical solutions with a focus on inclusion and meeting the individual's needs New and expanded coverage includes multilingualism the use of technology co-existing conditions such as dyspraxia dyscalculia and ADHD and positive dyslexia Assembles the latest policies and best practices for dyslexia from around the world and makes current debates regarding education and literacy accessible to trainees and practitioners New Literacies and Teacher Learning Michele Knobel, Judy Kalman, 2016-03-30 New Literacies and Teacher Learning examines the complexities of teacher professional development today in relation to new literacies and digital technologies set within the wider context of strong demands for teachers to be innovative and to improve students learning outcomes Contributors hail from Argentina Australia Canada Finland Mexico Norway and the U S and work in a broad range of situations grade levels activities scales and even national contexts Projects include early year education through to adult literacy education and university contexts describing a range of approaches to taking up new literacies and digital technologies within diverse learning practices While the authors present detailed descriptions of using various digital resources like movie editing software wikis video conferencing Twitter and YouTube they all agree that digital stuff while important is not the central concern Instead what they foreground in their discussions are theory informed pedagogical orientations collaborative learning theories the complexities of teachers workplaces and young people's interests

Thus a key premise in this collection is that teaching and learning are about deep engagement representing meanings in a range of ways These include acknowledging relationships and knowledge thinking critically about events phenomena and processes and participating in valued social and cultural activities The book shows how this kind of learning doesn't simply occur in a one off session but takes time commitment and multiple opportunities to interact with others to explore play make mistakes and get it right Management, a Bibliography for NASA Managers, 1984 Digital Play and Technologies in the Early Years Christine Stephen, Liz Brooker, Pamela Oberhuemer, Rod Parker-Rees, 2020-04-24 Technologies are a pervasive feature of contemporary life for adults and children However young children's experiences with digital technologies are often the subject of polarised debate among parents educators policymakers and social commentators particularly since the advent of tablets and smartphones changed access to the Internet and the nature of interactions with digital resources Some are opposed to children's engagement with digital resources concerned that the activities they afford are not developmentally appropriate limit physical activity and restrict the development of social skills Others welcome digital technologies which they see as offering new and enhanced ways of learning and sharing knowledge Despite this level of popular and policy interest in young children's interactions with digital technologies our understanding of the influence of these technologies on playing and learning and on the role of educators has remained surprisingly limited The contributions to this book fill in the gaps of our existing understanding of the field They focus on children and families from Australia to England to Estonia the how and why of encounters with digital technologies the nature of digital play and questions about practice and practitioners The book raises critical questions and offers new understandings and theoretical insights around one of the hot topics in early years research This book was originally published as a special issue of the Early Years journal
