Lectures on Metaphysics and Logic Sir William Hamilton, 1859 The following Lectures on Metaphysics constitute the first portion of the Biennial Course which the lamented Author was in the habit of delivering during the period of his occupation of the Chair of Logic and Metaphysics in the University of Edinburgh giving these Lectures to the world it is due both to the Author and to his readers to acknowledge that they do not appear in that state of completeness which might have been expected had they been prepared for publication by the Author himself As Lectures on Metaphysics whether that term be taken in its wider or its stricter sense they are confessedly imperfect The Author himself adopting the Kantian division of the mental faculties into those of Knowledge Feeling and Conation considers the Philosophy of Mind as comprehending in relation to each of these the three great subdivisions of Psychology or the Science of the Phenomena of Mind Nomology or the Science of its Laws and Ontology or the Science of Results and Inferences The term Metaphysics in its strictest sense is synonymous with the last of these subdivisions while in its widest sense it may be regarded as including the first also the second being in practice at least if not in scientific accuracy usually distributed among other departments of Philosophy The following Lectures cannot be considered as embracing the whole province of Metaphysics in either of the above senses Among the Phenomena of Mind the Cognitive Faculties are discussed fully and satisfactorily those of Feeling are treated with less detail those of Conation receive scarcely any special consideration while the questions of Ontology or Metaphysics proper are touched upon only incidentally The omission of any special discussion of this last branch may perhaps be justified by its abstruse character and unsuitableness for a course of elementary instruction but it is especially to be regretted both on account of the general neglect of this branch of study by the entire school of Scottish philosophers and also on account of the eminent qualifications which the Author possessed for supplying this acknowledged deficiency A treatise on Ontology from the pen of Sir William Hamilton embodying the final results of the Philosophy of the Conditioned would have been a boon to the philosophical world such as probably no writer now living is capable of conferring

Kant's Reason develops a novel interpretation of Kant's conception of reason and its philosophical significance Karl Schafer argues that Kant presents a powerful model for understanding the unity of theoretical and practical reason as two manifestations of a unified capacity for theoretical and practical understanding or comprehension This model allows us to do justice to the deep commonalities between theoretical and practical rationality without reducing either to the other In particular it enables us to see why the activities of both theoretical and practical reason are governed by a version of the Principle of Sufficient Reason while also seeing why reason is essentially autonomous At the same time Kant's Reason reads Kant as presenting a compelling picture of the role that reason as a capacity or power should play in a systematic approach to foundational philosophical questions In doing so it argues for an account of the fundamental norms that apply to rational beings that treats neither substantive reasons or values nor merely structural rationality as fundamental but instead provides a robust conception of reason as a power or capacity for theoretical and practical understanding The result is a form of rational constitutivism which contrasts both with the forms of reasons fundamentalism that are currently fashionable and the forms of agency first constitutivism that have dominated Kantian metaethics In this sense this volume aims to vindicate Kant's insistence that his philosophy represents nothing more or less than reason's implicit self understanding coming to explicit and systematic self consciousness Catalogue of the Library of the Peabody Institute of the City of Baltimore ... George Peabody Library,1887 Catalogue of the Printed Books in the Library of the Society of Writers to H.M.
