- A problem statement “is carefully phrased and represents the single goal of the total research effort” (Leedy and Ormrod 2010:45)
- “The problem or question is the axis around which the whole research effort revolves. The statement of the problem must first be expressed with the utmost precision” (2010:44).
- The problem statement leads to the sub-problems, which are all part of the research

Transitioning from a Theological College to a Christian University Semeon Mulatu,2017-10-14 The decision for ministerial training institutions to become broader educational institutions that offer courses outside the traditional areas of theology is certainly not unique to a specific geographical context While there are many examples of notable institutions making this transition in North America and Europe very little reflection has been carried out in the global south In this book Dr Semeon Mulatu looks to institutions in Kenya Ethiopia Uganda and the Democratic Republic of Congo that have completed or embarked upon the journey to university status The study explores the motivations of educational leaders in pursuing such a transition as well as the impact it has had or will have on the continued theological education and Christian mission of the institution Here you will find answers to key questions such as What is lost and gained by a seminary becoming a university What are the challenges along the road Is it all worth it in the end
