Learning and Teaching on the World Wide Web Christopher R. Wolfe,2001-03-21 This book is about using the Internet as a teaching tool It starts with the psychology of the learner and looks at how best to fit technology to the student rather than the other way around The authors include leading authorities in many areas of psychology and the book takes a broad look at learners as people. Thus it includes a wide range of materials from how the eye reads moving graphs on a Web page to how people who have never met face to face can interact on the Internet and create communities of learners. The book considers many Internet technologies but focuses on the World Wide Web and new hybrid technologies that integrate the Web with other communications technologies. This book is essential to researchers in psychology and education who are interested in learning. It is also used in college and graduate courses in departments of psychology and educational psychology. Teachers and trainers at any level who are using technology in their teaching or thinking about it find this book very useful. Key Features: Distinguished authors with considerable expertise in their fields; Broad intra disciplinary perspective on learning and teaching on the Web; Focus on the Web and emerging Web based technologies; Special attention to conducting educational research on line; Emphasis on the Social and Psychological Context; Analyses of effective Web based learning resources; Firmly grounded in contemporary psychological research and theory.

Library Technology and User Services Anthony S. Chow, Tim Bucknall, 2011-11-09
Written as a technology guide for students, practitioners and administrators, the focus of this book is on introducing current and future trends in library technology and automation within the larger context of strategic and systems planning, implementation and continuous improvement. Technology is an essential resource for attaining both organizational and patron goals and planning needs to emphasize the alignment between the clearly defined goals of each. For this alignment to occur on a consistent basis, goals must be designed or engineered in a systematic fashion where technology fulfils the need to deliver the desired outcomes in an efficient, cost effective manner. The concept of usability engineering is also examined where the technology is planned, designed and implemented in such a way as to maximize utility and ease of use for users and employees. Readers of this book will understand both the why and the how of library technology planning and implementation articulated in a simple, easy to understand fashion. Delivered from academic, public and school library media perspectives, current and emerging technologies are discussed along with their current and future application in the field of library and information science. Technology planning and integration is explained using a systems design process with scenarios and case studies that are articulated in a step wise, holistic fashion.

Educational Psychology A.k.nayak, 2004

Rockin' in Red Square Walter Grnzwieg, Nana Rinehart, 2002
International educators can take the high road towards rigorous investment in the ideals of true cultural exchange or continue down the low road to customer satisfaction and design programs that reduce or eliminate challenges. International education structured according to the latter principle is little more than just another product in the global marketplace. In spite of the process of globalization and partly because of it, international education faces a major crisis. This volume with contributors from Austria, Chile, France, Germany, The Netherlands and the United States sets forth a timely and provocative critique of international education and assesses its future under radically different conditions than those in place twenty years ago. Walter Grnzwieg is professor of American literature and culture at Universitt Dortmund He holds adjunct professorships at the University of Pennsylvania University of New York at Binghamton and Canisius College Nana Rinehart is associate director of the International Student Exchange Program
