Measuring College Learning Responsibly Richard J. Shavelson, 2009-12-17 Accrediting boards the federal government and state legislatures are now requiring a greater level of accountability from higher education However current accountability practices including accreditation No Child Left Behind and performance reporting are inadequate to the task If wielded indiscriminately accountability can actually do more harm than good This innovative work looks broadly at how accountability is being considered by campuses accrediting boards higher education organizations and governments in the US and abroad It explores how new demands for accountability and new technologies are changing the way student learning is assessed The author one of the most respected assessment researchers in the nation provides a framework for assessing student learning and discusses historical and contemporary debates in the field He details new directions in assessment such as the Collegiate Learning Assessment he helped develop analyzes exemplary campus assessment programs and proposes considerations necessary for designing successful accountability systems

Languaging Myths and Realities Qianqian Zhang-Wu, 2021-11-15 Higher education institutions in Anglophone countries often rely on standardized English language proficiency exams to assess the linguistic capabilities of their multilingual international students However there is often a mismatch between these scores and the initial experiences of international students in both academic and social contexts Drawing on a digital ethnography of Chinese international students first semester languaging practices this book examines their challenges needs and successes on their initial languaging journeys in higher education It analyzes how they use their rich multilingual and multi modal communicative repertoires to facilitate languaging across contexts in order to suggest how university support systems might better serve the needs of multilingual international students
