Climatic Design, Manual of Tropical Housing and Building, Part O.H. Koenigsberger, 1980 A Genealogy of Tropical Architecture Jiat-Hwee Chang, 2016-04-28 A Genealogy of Tropical Architecture traces the origins of tropical architecture to nineteenth century British colonial architectural knowledge and practices It uncovers how systematic knowledge and practices on building and environmental technologies in the tropics were linked to military technologies medical theories and sanitary practices and were manifested in colonial building types such as military barracks hospitals and housing It also explores the various ways these colonial knowledge and practices shaped post war techno scientific research and education in climatic design and modern tropical architecture Drawing on the interdisciplinary scholarships on postcolonial studies science studies and environmental history Jiat Hwee Chang argues that tropical architecture was inextricably entangled with the socio cultural constructions of tropical nature and the politics of colonial governance and postcolonial development in the British colonial and post colonial networks By bringing to light new historical materials through formidable research and tracing the history of tropical architecture beyond what is widely considered today as its founding moment in the mid twentieth century this important and original book revises our understanding of colonial built environment It also provides a new historical framework that significantly bears upon contemporary concerns with climatic design and sustainable architecture This book is an essential resource for understanding tropical architecture and its various contemporary manifestations Its in depth discussion and path breaking insights will be invaluable to specialists academics students and practitioners

Don Manuel, P.E., 2014-05 This book is an attempt to combine all the books literatures researches and universities master s theses available for a shortcut fundamental knowledge to design basic passive or natural ventilation in residential homes As in depth studies in passive design will take years of immense work due to so many variables involved we tried to gather just enough information to provide you the basic working knowledge to start designing your simple naturally ventilated project We also included our NV study of a high rise building that was successfully built Design Primer for Hot Climates Allan Konya, 2013-10-22 Design Primer for Hot Climates offers a discussion of architecture and planning for hot climates The hot tropical and sub tropical regions contain most of the world s population and it is here that the majority of new buildings will be built For this reason this book concentrates on these regions but serves only as a broad outline of the climatic environmental and technological conditions

The book begins with a discussion of climatic elements climatic zones and comfort This is followed by separate chapters on climatic design regional hazards e g condensation lightning storms earthquakes etc that must be considered during the design stage and factors such as site accessibility materials selection water and labor supply and building regulations and standards This book is meant not only for designers from temperate climatic areas but also for those who live in these regions in the hope that they will be stimulated to re examine conditions which may have become over familiar to them

The Challenge of Change: Dealing with the Legacy of the Modern Movement D. van den Heuvel, M. Mesman, W.

Quist, 2008-09-11 Conservation of architecture and the conversation of Modern architecture in particular has assumed new challenges Rather than attempting to return a Modern building to its resumed original state the challenge of these proceedings is to revalue the essence of the manifold manifestations of Modern architecture and redefine its meanings in a rapidly changing world of digital revolution worldwide mobility and environmental awareness This volume aims to provide a variety of platforms for the exchange of ideas and experience A large international group of architects historians scholars preservationists and other parties involved in the processes of preserving renovating and transforming Modern buildings has been invited to investigate the paradox of the Modern monument and to reflect on the manifold dilemmas of change and continuity The general theme is elaborated through five sub themes The sub theme Change and Continuity addresses the tensions between change and continuity from a historical theoretical perspective Restructuring Cities and Landscapes focuses on the larger scale of city and landscape while Shifts in Programme and Flexibility draws attention to the scale of the building or building complex and questions limits of re use and flexibility The fourth sub theme deals with education and the fifth sub theme Progress Technology and Sustainability considers specific issues of techniques and materials Third

Stay Cool Holger Koch-Nielsen,2013-06-17 In hot dry or warm humid climates more than half of the urban peak load of energy consumption is used to satisfy air conditioning demands alone. Since the urbanization rate in developing countries is extreme, the pressure placed on energy resources to satisfy the future requirements of the built environment will be great unless new, more cost-effective measures can be introduced. Stay Cool is an essential guide for planning and design using active design principles and passive means to satisfy human comfort requirements specifically in these climate zones based on examples of traditional and modern constructions. The book demonstrates how a design strategy for urban environments and individual buildings incorporating naturally occurring resources and specific energy-efficient technologies can create a location form and structure that promote significant energy savings. Such strategies can be applied to low-cost housing or indeed to any other buildings in order to improve comfort with passive means and low energy budgets. Following an outline of climatic issues, characteristics and thermal comfort requirements, the book details the available techniques and technologies that can be used to shape both built and external environments, the building envelope, material selections and natural ventilation and cooling methods to satisfy both human requirements and the need for energy efficiency. It also includes an active design checklist and summary of available design checking tools, a rehabilitation guide for existing urban building and external environments and solar charts. Planners, architects, engineers, technicians and building designers will find Stay Cool an inspirational guide and an essential reference when working with planning and design of the built environment in hot dry and warm humid climate zones. It will also be of benefit to students, academics and researchers with an interest in sustainable and energy-efficient architecture techniques and practice.

Removing Barriers to Environmental Comfort in the Global South Laura Marín-Restrepo, Alexis Pérez-Fargallo, María Beatriz Piderit-Moreno, Maureen Trebilcock-Kelly, Paulina Wegertseder-Martínez, 2023-05-11. This book describes how comfort, energy and climate change in developing countries and vulnerable sectors of the population relate to buildings. The building sector is currently facing significant challenges connected to energy consumption, energy poverty and climate change effects. When studied in developing countries and vulnerable sectors of the population, these factors, which are commonplace in the tropics and the southern hemisphere, are interlinked and share a critical component: environmental comfort. Although progress has been made in environmental comfort through research and the development of standards and policies at the international level in the Global South, where the countries with the highest levels of income inequality are concentrated, environmental comfort has its own characteristics and challenges that prevent a clear understanding from the established vision of the Global North. This book presents research theories and techniques related to Thermal comfort, Indoor air quality, Visual comfort and Acoustic comfort and its relationship with energy use and energy efficiency, seeking to address different barriers to environmental comfort. It shows how to improve the way buildings are designed and operated to promote healthier environmental conditions and more sustainable construction by presenting studies and reflections carried out in the target geographical area, the Global South. In this way, this book contributes to developing the concept of environmental comfort visualising how progress has been made in understanding it from a tropical and southern perspective and posing common challenges The book is intended for engineers architects and researchers of the built environment who are interested in environmental comfort and its influence on energy consumption energy poverty and other related factors in the Global South context It is also a useful resource for decision makers and public policy developers concerned with the indoor comfort of buildings Moreover the book aims to provide guidance for those in developing countries by gathering existing knowledge in the field for the tropics and southern hemisphere climatic and sociocultural contexts allowing us to move forward in this subject with actions and proposed solutions that fit our particular needs Designing for Zero Waste

Steffen Lehmann,Robert Crocker,2013-07-03 Designing for Zero Waste is a timely topical and necessary publication Materials and resources are being depleted at an accelerating speed and rising consumption trends across the globe have placed material efficiency waste reduction and recycling at the centre of many government policy agendas giving them an unprecedented urgency While there has been a considerable literature addressing consumption and waste reduction from different disciplinary perspectives the complex nature of the problem requires an increasing degree of interdisciplinarity Resource recovery and the optimisation of material flow can only be achieved alongside and through behaviour change to reduce the creation of material waste and wasteful consumption This book aims to develop a more robust understanding of the links between lifestyle consumption technologies and urban development Australian Environmental Planning Jason Byrne,Neil Sipe,Jago Dodson,2014-04-16 Winner of the Planning Institute of Australia s 2015 Cutting Edge Research and Teaching Award Australians from all walks of life have begun to realise the nation s cities cannot sustain profligate growth indefinitely Dwindling water supplies failing food bowls increased energy costs more severe bushfires severe storms flooding coastal erosion rising transport expenses housing shortages and environmental pollution are now daily news headlines Australia s cities may have reached their ecological limits a new model for planning the places we live is needed Understanding the natural cycles of the city is just as important to planning our cities as knowledge of local ordinances indeed much more so A profound knowledge of environmental processes is critical for successful planning in today s world Environmental planners take as their guiding principle the concept of designing with nature approaching cities as living organisms that consume water energy and raw materials and produce waste This metabolic view of cities means we can find new solutions to old problems and steer our cities towards a more sustainable form of planning Written specifically for students and professionals working in city planning in Australia this ground breaking new book enables Australian planners architects and developers to get a better understanding of the fundamental principles of environmental planning for cities showing how land water air energy wildlife and people shape our built environments and how in turn environmental processes must be better understood if we are to make informed decisions about developing cities that are more sustainable The book s coverage is comprehensive from an overview of the concepts and theories of environmental planning through analysis of governance systems and urban environmental processes to agendas and policies for the future all the key topics are covered in depth with recommendations for supporting reading and an unrivalled selection of additional materials Ideal for students essential for professionals Australian Environmental Planning is vital reading for more sustainable cities in a more sustainable world

Metric Handbook David Adler,2007-06-07 Originally devised as a guide for converting from imperial to metric measurements The Metric Handbook has since been totally transformed into a major international handbook of planning and design data The second edition has been completely updated with most chapters being totally rewritten to meet the needs of the modern designer The book contains nearly 50 chapters dealing with all the principal building types from airports factories and warehouses offices shops and hospitals to schools religious buildings and libraries For each building type The Metric Handbook gives the basic design requirements and all the principal dimensional data Several chapters deal with general aspects of building such as materials lighting acoustics and tropical design There are also sections on general design data including details of human dimensions and space requirements It is a unique authoritative reference for solving everyday planning problems In its various editions it has sold over 100 000 copies worldwide and continues to be a reference work belonging on every design office desk or drawing board

Architecture and Energy William Braham,Daniel Willis,2013-07-18 Does energy consumption influence architectural style Should more energy efficient buildings look different Can that look be used to explain or enhance their performance Architecture and Energy provides architects and architectural theorists with more durable arguments for environmental design decisions arguments addressing three different scales or aspects of contemporary construction By drawing together essays from the leading experts in the field this book engages with crucial issues in sustainable design such as The larger role of energy in forming the cultural and economic systems in which architecture is conceived constructed and evaluated The different measures and meanings of energy performance and how those measures are realized in buildings The specific ways in which energy use translates into the visible aspects of architectural style Drawing on research from the UK US Europe and Asia the book outlines the problems surrounding energy and architecture and provides the reader with a considered overview of this important topic

Passive-cooling Handbook ,1980 Drawing Climate Daniel Ryan,Jennifer Ferng,Erik L'Heureux,2021-11-08 Ephemeral phenomena like fire precipitation shade and wind have emerged as important contemporary protagonists for environmental design due to their dynamic impact on buildings and cities The importance of including these forces in architecture has gained rapid momentum in the global quest for sustainability This book investigates the history theory and applications of climatic design in the built environment examining architecture and landscapes from various time periods Based on a collaboration between the University of Sydney and the National University of Singapore the book brings together contributing authors from Australia Singapore and the United States Dry Wet Cool and Hot divide the book into categories through which a wide array of representational topics are covered from dust storms and clouds to ice and bushfires A concluding section presents project examples for exploratory application in the design of architecture
