Aikhenvald,2018-01-18 This volume offers a thorough systematic and crosslinguistic account of evidentiality the linguistic encoding of the source of information on which a statement is based In some languages the speaker always has to specify this source for example whether they saw the event heard it inferred it based on visual evidence or common sense or was told about it by someone else While not all languages have obligatory marking of this type every language has ways of referring to information source and associated epistemological meanings The continuum of epistemological expressions covers a range of devices from the lexical means in familiar European languages and in many languages of Aboriginal Australia to the highly grammaticalized systems in Amazonia or North America In this handbook experts from a variety of fields explore topics such as the relationship between evidentials and epistemic modality contact induced changes in evidential systems the acquisition of evidentials and formal semantic theories of evidentiality The book also contains detailed case studies of evidentiality in language families across the world including plethora of grammatical means Four major groups of meanings related to knowledge are Evidentiality grammatical expression of information source Egophoricity grammatical expression of access to knowledge Mirativity grammatical expression of expectation of knowledge and Epistemic modality grammatical expression of attitude to knowledge The four groups of categories interact Some develop overtones of the others Evidentials stand apart from other means in many ways including their correlations with speech genres and social environment This essay presents a framework which connects the expression of knowledge across the world s languages in a coherent way showing their dependencies and complexities and pathways of historical development in various scenarios including language obsolescence Anthropos ,1981 Gender im Experiment Jörg Steinbach,2009 Bibliografía peruana ,1992 Building and Interpreting Possession Sentences Neil Myler,2024-02-06 A wide ranging generative analysis of the typology of possession sentences solving long standing puzzles in their syntax and semantics A major question for linguistic theory concerns how the structure of sentences relates to their meaning There is broad agreement in the field that there is some regularity in the way that lexical semantics and syntax are related so that thematic roles the different participant roles in an event agent theme goal etc are predictably associated with particular syntactic positions In this book Neil Myler examines the syntax and semantics of possession sentences which are infamous for appearing to diverge dramatically from this broadly regular pattern On the one hand Myler points out possession sentences have too many meanings in any given language the construction used to express archetypal possessive meanings such as personal ownership is also often used to express other apparently unrelated notions body parts kinship relations and many others On the other hand possession sentences have too many surface structures languages differ markedly in the argument structures used to convey the same possessive meanings Myler argues that recent work on the syntax semantics interface in the generative tradition has developed the tools needed to solve these puzzles Examining and synthesizing ideas from the literature and drawing on data from many languages including some understudied Quechua dialects Myler presents a novel way to understand the apparent irregularity of possession sentences while preserving explanations of general cross linguistic regularities offering a unified approach to the syntax and semantics of possession sentences that can also be integrated into a general theory of argument structure Peruanische Satire am Vorabend der Unabhängigkeit (1770 bis 1800) María Soledad Barbón, 2001 Las sociedades aborígenes Luis Guillermo Lumbreras Salcedo, 1999 Latin American Indian Literatures , 1984
