Learner Steven Rex Oare,2007 With the intent of improving the teaching of practice strategies to young musicians the purpose of this multiple case study was to discover how students use goal setting and self assessment within their personal practice sessions and how these self regulative components affect strategy choice and motivation The specific questions were as follows a What goal setting and self assessment comments do novice adolescent instrumental musicians make during instrumental practice b What goal setting and self assessment strategies do novice adolescent instrumental musicians use during instrumental practice c Are there differences in practice strategies found among students when they are deliberately involved in goal setting or self assessment compared to times when they are not setting goals or self assessment and d What strategies do students use to address various technical aspects of performance This study entailed the observation of middle school aged instrumental music students N 6 during their individual practice Two students were in eighth grade and four were in seventh grade The students played flute N 2 clarinet N 1 saxophone N 2 and trombone N 1 Data was collected via field notes videotape analysis of three practice sessions per student along with concurrent and retrospective verbal reports focus group interviews before and after the observation cycle commenced and concluded and an interview with the students band director Data were analyzed within cases and across cases for emergent themes Four themes were found to describe a cyclical practice process in which students moved from motivation to goal setting to strategy use to assessment and back to motivation Each stage of the cycle seemed to drive other stages Students with learning goal orientations seemed to practice more effectively than students with performance or time orientations Student goals tended to lack specificity which negatively influenced student choice of practice strategy and self assessment Three external factors were found that had a strong influence on the practice cycle including teachers musical aural image and learning development These three factors wove their way through all four stages of the practice cycle Music at the Middle Level June Hinckley,1994 This book covers important middle level topics such as scheduling related arts assessment the adolescent learner incorporating technology and more Researchers outline the major topics and middle school teachers describe actual successful programs

Pashang, Nazilla Khanlou, Jennifer Clarke, 2018-03-01 This book focuses on the social and intersectional determinants of mental health among youth. The innovative and cutting edge text arises out of multidisciplinary fields of academic researchers, policy makers, practitioners, artists, and youth. Contributions from Canada, Germany, Portugal, South Korea, Burkina Faso, Afghanistan, and Jamaica address the complexities and the opportunities for youth across contexts. Each chapter entails an introduction to the topic, literature review, and research findings, discussion, and implications in regard to research, policy, and practice. A unique aspect of the book is the inclusion of a critical response to each chapter's content from diverse stakeholders such as policy makers, front line workers, practitioners, community activists, artists, and youth. The book is a critical and current contribution to exploring youth mental health and specifically the ways in which youth learn, live, and resist in a world around them. Topics examined include youth social engagement, civic integration, and political participation at multiple local, regional, and transnational levels. Resources in Education, 2001-10 The Instrumentalist Traugott

Rohner, 1993 The Science and Psychology of Music Performance Richard Parncutt, Gary McPherson, 2002-04-18 What type of practice makes a musician perfect? What sort of child is most likely to succeed on a musical instrument? What practice strategies yield the fastest improvement in skills such as sight reading, memorization, and intonation? Scientific and psychological research can offer answers to these and other questions that musicians face every day. In The Science and Psychology of Music Performance, Richard Parncutt and Gary McPherson assemble relevant current research findings and make them accessible to musicians and music educators. This book describes new approaches to teaching music, learning music, and making music at all educational and skill levels. Each chapter represents the collaboration between a music researcher, usually a music psychologist and a performer or music educator. This combination of expertise results in excellent practical advice. Readers will learn, for example, that they are in the majority (57%) if they experience rapid heartbeat before performances; the chapter devoted to performance anxiety will help them decide whether beta blocker medication, hypnotherapy, or the Alexander Technique of relaxation might alleviate their stage fright. Another chapter outlines a step by step method for introducing children to musical notation, firmly based on research in cognitive development. Altogether the 21 chapters cover the personal, environmental, and acoustical influences that shape the learning and performance of music.
