Sifton, Paul Weinacht, 2008 The prediction of the dynamic stability derivatives roll damping Magnus and pitch damping moments were evaluated for three spin stabilized projectiles using steady state computational fluid dynamic CFD calculations Roll damping CFD predictions were found to be very good across the Mach number range investigated Magnus moment predictions were very good in the supersonic flight regime however the accuracy varied in the subsonic and transonic flight regime The best Magnus moment prediction in the subsonic flight regime was for the square base projectile that did not exhibit highly nonlinear Magnus moments A primary contribution of this report is the demonstration that the pitch damping moment can be adequately predicted via steady state methods rather than resorting to unsteady techniques The predicted pitch damping moment compared very well to experimental data for the three projectiles investigated For one configuration the pitch damping moment was predicted by several CFD codes two different steady state methods and a time accurate planar pitching motion method All methods compared very well to each other and to the experimental data Handbook of Industrial Mixing Edward L.
