Introduction and Overview of the Fruit Industry

The fruit industry is a vital part of the agricultural sector, providing a wide range of products for consumption and processing. This section provides an overview of the industry's structure and key players.

The industry is characterized by a high degree of competition, with many small and medium-sized producers competing for market share. The industry is also highly seasonal, with production peaking in the summer months.

Key players in the industry include large agribusinesses, cooperatives, and small-scale producers. The industry is also highly regulated, with strict standards for production and distribution.

The industry is facing a number of challenges, including climate change, pest and disease outbreaks, and increasing competition from other countries. Despite these challenges, the industry remains a vital part of the agricultural sector.
