Gormley Jr.,David L. Weimer,1999-03 In recent years consumers professional organizations government officials and third party payers have become increasingly concerned about how to assess the quality of the services provided by organizations in both the private and the public sectors One new approach is the organizational report card which compares the performance of organizations such as public schools colleges hospitals and HMOs This book offers the first comprehensive study of such instruments It discusses the circumstances under which they are desirable alternatives to other policy instruments such as regulation how they should be designed who is likely to use them and for what purpose and what role if any government should have in their creation Informed by cases drawn from education health and other policy areas this book develops a conceptual framework for analyzing these issues It explores the tradeoffs in measuring performance the methods of communicating results effectively to mass and elite audiences and the ways in which organizations respond to the data gathered Schoolhouse Shams Peter Downs,2013 Written by a parent and school board member who first embraced many of the ideas of the modern school reform movement Schoolhouse Shams lays bare much of the mythology and misinformation that underpin many of the failed school reform policies of the last decade Many of the top strategies of the highly publicized school reform movement already have been tried out in St Louis with disastrous results Along with demonstrating the failure of school reform prescriptions to improve education the experience of St Louis demonstrates that the ideological premise of the reform movement that a focus on providing opportunities for private profit taking will necessarily improve schools is both wrong and conflicts with the ideals of democracy accountability and justice The Civics Report Card Lee F. Anderson,2021-01-18 The question of why we need to think about how we research race demands a conceptualization of race that captures both its social construction and its temporal evolution We need both an understanding of race and clarity about how we talk about it in our design and conduct of research and in how we interpret and apply it in our findings As a field we can use research on race and racism in education to help construct social change Our purpose with this volume is to underscore the persistence of the discriminatory actions processes and the normalization of the use of race and class conditions to justify the existing and growing disparity between the quality of life and opportunity for middle class and more affluent Whites and that for people of color and people of color who live in poverty As editors of this volume we wonder what more we could learn and understand about the process and condition of race if we dare to ask bold questions about race and racism and commit to methods and analyses that respect the experiences and knowledges of our research participants and partners Resources in Education ,2001 State and County School Administration Ellwood P.
